ARMY READY FOR DRIVE TO START TUESDAY

Workers All Set to Raise Fund of $50,000 to Advertise City

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning the new drive army of 100 majors, captains and team workers will gather at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, 150 South Brand boulevard, for a final get-together before starting out on the "clean-up campaign" for the balance of the $50,000 advertising fund to put Glendale's reasons for being "the fastest growing city in America" squarely before the people of the United States.

M. Walters, chairman of the C. of C. ways and means committee and general in charge of the drive, will be on hand to distribute prospect cards to the workers and answer any questions that may come up. Every card given a worker has been carefully checked, Mr. Walters states, and the amounts set down are conservative.

Total to Date

The total amount subscribed to date is approximately $30,000. It is expected to raise at least another $10,000 by the clean-up campaign. The remaining $10,000 needed to complete the sum of $50,000 Glendale has set itself to raise will be obtained through sale of the "Glendale 100,000 Club" buttons, states Mr. Walters. This campaign will be in charge of the women's clubs and the girls' organization of the city and will start Saturday, May 3. The buttons will sell at $1 each and the campaign slogan will be "a

MOTHER AND SON IN SUICIDE PACT

Portland Police of Opinion Pair Planned Demise; Two Notes Found

PORTLAND, Ore., April 28.—The bodies of Mrs. May R. Post, 67, and her son George S. Post, 35, were found in their home here early today with their throats slashed. Their deaths are believed by police to be the result of a suicide pact.

Mrs. Post was found dead in her bedroom. She was dressed in a night gown. A razor was found by her right side. The body of her son was found in the bathroom. He was fully dressed. A razor was also found near him, police stated.

MERCHANT KILLED

IMPERIAL, April 28.—L. Christiansen, proprietor of the Sunset store, was killed in an auto collision near Holtville.

Denies Soliciting Coolidge Support On Muscle Shoals

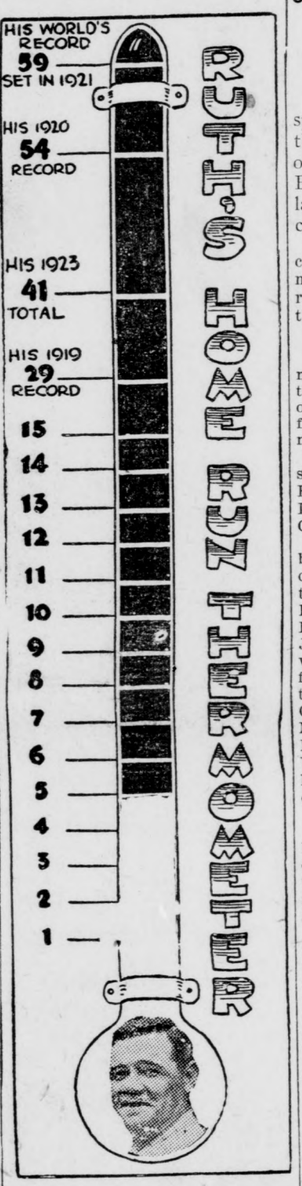
DETROIT, April 28.—Henry Ford attaches no significance whatever to the making public of telegrams between E. J. Leibold, his secretary, and James M. Miller, a Washington newspaper man, dealing with the Muscle Shoals project, it was learned at the Ford offices today.

President Coolidge's stand on Ford's bid for the government's plant was not solicited, it was said, and the interview given to James M. Miller was given for publication and not as "inside" information.

It was further learned that Miller does not represent Ford nor Ford's newspaper.

Bulletin!

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 28.—Babe Ruth hammered out another homer in the eighth frame today, making his total for the day, two and season number five. Baumgartner was the victim.



CLAIMS COOLIDGE IN SHOALS DEAL

Nebraska Senator Charges President Would Give Project to Ford

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Coolidge this afternoon issued a formal statement denying charges made today before the Senate agricultural committee that he was trying to "deliver" Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Coolidge is one of the leaders in the movement to turn the government's nitrate and power project at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, over to Henry Ford, Senator George W. Norris, republican of Nebraska, charged today before the Senate agricultural committee.

Norris based his charge on a telegram from James M. Miller, Washington representative of Ford, to E. J. Leibold, Ford's secretary at Detroit.

In this telegram, which Norris obtained by subpoena from the Western Union Telegraph company, Miller said he had talked to the president, and Mr. Coolidge said he was willing to let Henry Ford have Muscle Shoals, but wanted Ford to be careful what he said about the deal.

WILL STORE PIPE

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Jess E. Stephens, city attorney, has prepared a lease whereby the city of Los Angeles will lease approximately two acres of land from the Santa Ana Beet Sugar company of Santa Ana. This land will be used by the city for storing concrete pipe.

BOY SCOUTS GET HONOR AWARDS

Ceremony Takes Place at First Baptist Church; Badges to Many

Ceremonial dignity and inspiring goodfellowship marked the quarterly court of honor of the Verdugo Hills Council, Boy Scouts of America, held last night at the First Baptist church.

The church auditorium was crowded to capacity for the ceremonial, which opened with a brief resume of the council's work by the president, Roy L. Kent.

Presents Badges

Captain W. C. Wattles, chairman of the court of honor, was then introduced and after a word of greeting to the boys and their friends he presented Scout Commissioner Major Wyman.

Other members of the court seated on the platform were A. R. Eastman, Frank C. Ayars, Mr. Dean, Mr. Wilson and Harvey R. Cheesman, Scout executive.

Merit Recognition

Next the first class Scouts were honored with more elaborate ceremony. Badges were presented to Marr Fraley, Charles Chrissenson, Harry Bogen, Jack Coleman and Robert Scribner.

The presentation of the merit badges was most interesting, for the Scouts so honored were called to the platform individually and the presentation made by some member of the court with a personal word of praise.

Merit recognition went to Wilbur Booth for pioneering and athletics; Lyman Bosserman, carpentry; Harry E. Bogen, pioneering; Jack Packard, public health; Billy Roger, craftsmanship wood; Ralph W. Doose, Jr., firemanship; James Ferry, firemanship; Kenneth Solomon, first aid, pioneering, personal health; Robert W. St. Clair, public health, personal

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—When C. B. Henry was arrested for alleged housebreaking he gave his occupation as a bartender. The officer who arrested him saw him backing out of a window. Now Henry's windows are barred and he has nothing to tend but time.

EAST FROWNS ON CHARLEY PADDOCK

California Boy Provides Wonderful Time But Not for Critics

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, April 28.—Following its usual custom, the east today was disposed to cast aspersion on the performance of Charley Paddock, made at the Drake relay carnival during the late week-end.

Critics here were almost unanimous in declaring that Paddock should not be credited with having done 9 3-4 seconds for 100 yards because he beat the gun. Very good. If Paddock beat the gun, it is obvious that he did not do "nine three" at all.

Deserves Credit

The fact that he ran 125 yards in the world's record time of 12 seconds was discounted, also, on the ground that it was and is a "freak distance." That is absurd.

Twelve seconds happens to be excellent time for 120 yards and the fact that Paddock ran five yards further in the same time constitutes a remarkable performance. It means that he shaded even figures for the first 100 yards of the distance and that, any way you look at it, is no club-footed effort.

The criticism, in fact, is merely the backwash of sectional jealousy with Paddock as the focal point. It is a condition that will not be dissipated until the athlete in question goes to the post with the best in the east and elsewhere at the Olympic try-outs at Cambridge June 14.

Results About Even

The holding of the Pennsylvania and Drake relays on competitive dates served to bring the entire east versus west controversy to a head as a matter of fact. The returns were more or less of a stand-off. Two western athletes, Oberst of Notre Dame, and Brooker, of Washington, won the javelin throw and pole vault, respectively, at the Pennsylvania games. Further, better performances were turned in at the Drake meeting in the 100-yard dash and several of the field events, notably the pole vault and high jump.

But the east came back with a world's record of 7:47 3-5 by Boston college for the two-mile relay, with Cambridge university distanced and Virginia 3:19 4-5 for one mile was much better than the time turned in at the Drake meet. In fact, a study of the performan-

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—The Petroleum Midway company, Limited, has been granted a franchise which will be approved by the City Council today to lay all pipe lines on Pries avenue and other streets i the Wilmington district.

S. Berman Illustrates Holdup Attempt; Turns Tragedy Into Comedy!

A dramatic attempted hold-up and dashing escape, with a comedy ending, percolated into the dome of the news teapot today. The hero role in the two-act sketch was played by S. Berman, tailor, of 404½ South Brand boulevard. The villain was a bold, bad auto bandit. Other characters included Mrs. Berman, her brother, Louis Sakn, and the reporter.

The curtain rises on act 1 at 12:15 o'clock Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Berman and Mr. Sakn have left a Los Angeles theatre and are on their way home in their car, when at Fourth and Flower streets they are forced into the curb by a pursuing auto. The door of the latter opens and a hand holding a pistol is thrust out.

Mr. Berman, who is driving, naturally stops—BUT, with lightning presence of mind he executes a master stroke, putting the car in reverse, stepping on the gas, backing away, shooting ahead and dashing down the dark street and around a corner at 40 miles an hour, with his half-fainting passengers, leaving the villain, foiled. The curtain falls as the dashing hero proceeds home by a winding route, arriving in Glendale at 1 o'clock this morning, thrilled and triumphant.

The curtain rises on act 2 at 10 o'clock this morning, outside Mr. Berman's store at the above address. He is telling the reporter all about the harrowing experience of the night before. To illustrate how he executed the backing maneuver, I gets into his car, throws it in reverse, steps on the gas and—CRASH, he batters his right rear fender into a cauliflower-ear against the car of his bookkeeper, H. Livie. The curtain falls to the accompaniment of guffaws and titters from the audience of passersby and shopkeepers who had gathered on the sidewalk to witness Mr. Berman's reconstruction of the attempted holdup of the night before.

As the society reporter says, "A good time was had by all."

THOUSANDS WEEP AT MURPHY RITES

Rich and Poor Present to Pay Tribute to Leader Of Tammany Hall

NEW YORK, April 28.—Charles F. Murphy, famous political leader, was laid to rest today while the people from whom he derived his power, paid him more generous tribute than he ever received in life.

Thousands lined the streets through which the casket passed, from the modest east side home to towering St. Patrick's cathedral; hundreds heard the simple services in church; thousands more followed the casket to Calvary cemetery, where the late sachem of Tammany hall will rest in death.

Silk-hatted dignitaries of official life and the people of the poorest section of the world—New York's east side—joined in the last honors to Murphy. Many of both classes wept openly and others openly prayed.

Fully 5,000 jammed the sidewalks about Stuyvesant park, in front of the residence, at an early hour this morning. At 10 o'clock the oak doors of the house swung inward and the coffin appeared, borne on the shoulders of eight friends of the dead leader, and was carried down the short flight of stone stairs to the street through a double line of honorary pall-bearers and placed in the hearse.

'Hands Off Jap Ban,' Warning to Coolidge

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Flat notice was served on President Coolidge this afternoon that any effort on the part of the administration to remove the Japanese exclusion provision of the new immigration bill will be "most bitterly" fought.

Anticipating a move by the president and Secretary of State Hughes to have the exclusion amendment again voted on in the Senate and House, Senator Shortridge, Republican, of California, its author, wrote a letter to the president declaring such a vote to be "impossible" and advising against its being tried.

ASKS LAW'S REPEAL

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—The Wilmington laundry of Wilmington, Calif., is petitioning for the repeal or modification of the ordinance requiring steam laundries to pay a license fee of $30 per month.

WILL SEIZE AUTOS

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Holders of 1923 automobile licenses, beware! After April 30, all automobiles carrying 1923 plates will be seized by the police.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—New assurance that the government is putting new energy in law enforcement was given members of the women's national committee for law enforcement when they called on President Calvin Coolidge at the White House. Many prominent women were in the party delegated by the committee meeting in Washington to call on the president, among them the wife of the secretary of commerce, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, who is an active member, and Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston, general chairman of the body.

ELEANOR GREGG TAKEN BY DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Gregg Lose One of Daughters Through Illness

The wide circle of friends of the D. L. Gregg family of 240 North Central avenue will be saddened by the news of the death at 7:30 o'clock this morning at the family home of Eleanor Gregg. Her death followed an illness that has confined her to her home since February 1 of this year.

Surviving her are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Gregg; a twin sister, Jessie, and three other sisters, Evelyn, Mrs. Dana Burket and Mrs. I. S. Brown.

The Gregg family have resided in Glendale for many years, Mr. Gregg being a well known merchant of 107 North Brand boulevard.

Miss Gregg attended the local grammar school and graduated in 1919 from the Glendale Union High school. Her mother is well known in Glendale club and church life, and the five sisters have all taken active parts in the social life of Glendale.

Announcement of funeral arrangements will be made later.

Identity of Would-Be Poisoner Is Mystery

FRESNO, April 28.—Identity of the person who sent poisoned candy to 19-year-old Othell Sloan, pretty Fowler, Cal., girl, is as much a mystery as ever, according to District Attorney Lovejoy, who returned here today from Oakland, where he made an investigation.

Several Oakland boys and postal clerks were questioned but could throw no light on the return address of a Mrs. Smith, Oakland, and a card found inside the box, which read "Do you remember me? If so, write. Ted."

When Miss Sloan tasted the candy she noticed it was bitter and gave her grandmother and uncle pieces of it. Suspicions were fruther aroused when a dog, which ate the candy, became sick.

SCIENCE ACADEMY HOME DEDICATED

President Delivers Address At Ceremonies Opening New Structure

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Dedicating America's newest and finest temple to the higher arts, the National Academy of Sciences, President Coolidge today predicted that in the future of scientific research the American people will find fulfillment of their greatest promise—"truth regarding everything that touches our life as a nation."

"A new sun is rising," the president declared. "The scientific man is rending the earth to reveal its secrets. Nothing with more promise could come to the American people. Truth must prevail for the betterment of mankind."

The National Academy of Sciences, donated to the country by the Carnegie corporation of New York, will house the National Research Council, a body of the nation's leading scientists whose efforts are devoted to research for the government. A magnificent edifice of stone and marble, it faces the famous Lincoln Memorial and is regarded as an outstanding contribution to the architectural beauty of the national capital.

104 MEN ARE TRAPPED BY BIG BLAST IN WEST VIRGINIA

All Are Believed to Have Perished; Gas Halts Attempt at Rescue

BULLETIN

WHEELING, W. Va., April 28.—Late this afternoon rescuers in the Wheeling Steel corporation at Benwood brought out one more body, raising the number of corpses removed to five. Ninety-nine yet remain unaccounted for. They are believed dead.

A wash-room at the mine has been converted into a temporary morgue, in charge of H. G. Hollinwell, who is filling that position for the fourteenth time at a mine disaster.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 28.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon four dead had been taken from the mine of the Wheeling Steel corporation at Benwood, where 104 men were trapped by an explosion at 7:10 o'clock this morning.

Two of the men were taken out by members of the Pittsburg mine rescue crew, who arrived at noon from the Benwood entry of the mine. The bodies were found in a mine motor, apparently headed for the open. They were burned beyond recognition.

Caught by Explosion

WHEELING, W. Va., April 28.—Within the Mill mine at Benwood of the Wheeling Steel corporation, today are entombed 104 or more miners whose fate is unknown. They were entombed at 7:10 this morning by an explosion that occurred within five minutes after the mine train carrying them to work had passed into the mine.

The Pittsburg mine rescue special, in charge of M. Holmes, reached Elm Grove at 11:40 o'clock to aid in rescue of the men in the mine.

Just as they arrived, automobiles with doctors and nurses were rushed from the Benwood entrance of the mine to the entry beyond Elm Grove, where it was reported that two miners had crawled out. All efforts to reach the entombed men will be concentrated at the latter point, while the attack upon the debris that is blocking the Benwood entrance is being renewed.

Sends Forth Gas

At 11 o'clock gas was being belched forth from the mouth of the mine in quantities such as made it unsafe to approach within 100 feet of the opening.

Shortly after 10:30 this morn-

DEATHS – FUNERALS

JOHN M. JONES

Comrades, another muster out, "taps have sounded, lights are out," Comrade John M. Jones, Company I, 20, Iowa Infantry, has answered the summons of the Great Commander in Chief, "The All Father," and has gone to try the realities of the other life. The land to which he has gone—in it they never say "I am sick." He has realized that "to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord."

While we, a few of his comrades with a number of friends and members of his family, were met for a tribute of respect to his memory, the severest storm of the season was on. He, however, was not affected by the conditions without, having gone above the clouds, "into the rest that remaineth to God's stewards."

Comrade Jones did his best as a soldier of the Civil war to help save the flag of his country from dishonor and the nation from being rent asunder. He lived to know his country was saved from division and greatly successful by the great sacrifice he and others made.

First: Resolved, That we rejoice in the great personal victory that was his, "death having been destroyed. "The last enemy to be destroyed is death."

Second: Resolved, That we remember with gratitude his faithfulness in attendance at our Post meetings and the cause for which we stand.

Third: Resolved, That to those taking the lead in the funeral services we extend thanks.

Fourth: Resolved, That for the beautiful flowers on this impressive occasion we extend thanks.

Fifth: Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of our deceased comrade and placed on the minutes of our Post.

Social Events

Luncheon Honor

The meeting tomorrow afternoon of the Tuesday Afternoon Club is full of interest for all the club members, for formal announcement is to be made by Mrs. Lillian Dow, chairman of the election board, of the number of votes received by the candidates in the recent election.

Tomorrow is a fifth Tuesday of the month, so there will be no club luncheon, simply the afternoon meeting at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Daniel Campbell, club president, will preside.

The entertainment will be given by Tilda Rohr, Swiss contralto, who is becoming well-known to Glendale audiences, assisted by Eva Kurtz Ghrist, talented Glendale pianiste.

Among other things, Mrs. Ghrist is to play "Romanze," by Alfred Grunfeld, noted Viennese artist, of whom she is a protege.

During the afternoon, flowers will be on sale at the clubhouse for the benefit of the Juvenile Protective Association work, of which Mrs. Leroy W. Bosserman is chairman for the club. Flowers will also be on sale in the business section of the city Tuesday and also on Wednesday.

Mrs. Bosserman announces that all Glendalians desiring to assist can do so by donating bouquets to sell.

Joint Hostesses

Mesdames Nathan Rigdon and Frank Arnold were joint hostesses at a luncheon late last week entertaining members of the board of the Glendale Music club as a farewell honor to the president, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, who, with Mr. Jones and daughter Winifred, leave on Friday, this week, for an extended trip east and abroad.

A profusion of spring roses in shades of pink formed the centerpiece of the luncheon table. Before Mrs. Jones' place was a shower of dainty handkerchiefs.

The company was entertained with musical selections by Madame Grace Whistler. She gave Scotch and Spanish songs, accompanying herself.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Jones called the club directors into meeting and Mrs. Frank Arnold was named chairman of the nominating committee for the annual election in May. Four other members of the committee will be selected from the active membership by Mrs. Nathan Rigdon, vice-president, who will serve in Mrs. Jones' absence.

Guests were Mesdames Mattison B. Jones, Calvin Whiting, F. H. Wallace, Warren Roberts, L. J. Priaulx, Alexander Mitchell, Helen Campbell, C. L. Marlenee, Eva Cunningham, E. W. Kinney.

Birthday Party

Elizabeth Canfield of 447½ West Maple street, celebrated a most happy birthday on Saturday, when, with her mother, Mrs. Edna A. Canfield, she motored to Highland and was honoree at an evening dancing party given by Mrs. C. L. Mosher and her daughter Kathryn. Accompanying Miss Canfield and her mother was Miss Elizabeth Danforth of Riverdale drive.

Miss Mosher had invited a group of college and home friends for the party and after an evening of dancing, a birthday luncheon was served.

A pink color scheme was used in the appointments for the table.

Roses were the floral feature and a big birthday cake was placed before Miss Canfield.

The company included Misses Elizabeth Canfield, Elizabeth Danforth, Ida Maxine Webster, Bessie Watson, Marian Dickson, May Norris, Madeline Jimes, Beryl Admire, May Neuss, Evaline Davis, Kathryn Mosher, and Ross Miller, Richard Mitchnor, Wallace Linville, Wilson Biery, Herchel Linville, Mack Riley, Pariser Webster, Andrew Davis, Gulmer Dickson, William Paul and Harold Dimmock.

The Epworth League room of the Casa Verdugo Methodist church was the scene of a pleasant affair Saturday afternoon when the King's Heralds met for a social afternoon, as a result of a contest held at a recent meeting.

Martha Jones captain of the losing side, and her assistants, were hostesses to the winners, of whom Rita Schrader was captain. Games were played and light refreshments served.

Twenty-five young people were present. Miss Lowella Wright, superintendent of the organization, was one of the guests.

Man Must Aid Others To Live, Says Speaker

Capt. Max Wardall, who appeared before a large audience at the New Thought center Sunday morning, spoke on the subject, "Wrestling with Fate." He said in part:

"When man ceases to lay his troubles at the door of others he is ready to wrestle fate to victory Man is intended to fit into the plan of things where he can serve not only himself but others.

"Neither pain, sorrow, misfortune nor death itself can keep the divine spark in man from expanding. If man will not learn through gentleness he must learn through pain."

Capt. Wardall concludes his series of lectures next Sunday with "Sleep and the Subconscious Mind."

'SCARAMOUCHE' MASTERPIECE OF DRAMATIC POWER

On a par with the greatest film productions in the world is "Scaramouche," the new Rex Ingram offering, which opened yesterday at the Glendale Theatre. In seeking comparisons that would convey some idea of the vigor and scope and supreme artistry of this mighty picture, one is compelled to open the cinema treasure chest of the years and bring forth such as D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," Ernest Lubitsch's "Passion" and this same Rex Ingram's "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Prisoner of Zenda."

It was in the latter that the male lead of "Scaramouche," Ramon Navarro, won world-wide recognition of his talent; and it was in the filming of this picture that the romance between Ingram and Alice Terry culminated in marriage.

Almost from the first grim flashes of the starving Parisians in the tottering reign of Louis XVI to the last wild scenes of the surging, victorious revolutionists, the story is gripping as few stories on the screen have ever been. One is overwhelmed by this magnificent panorama of the French revolution as Ingram has visioned it from the popular Rafael Sabatini novel which was the basis of the photoplay.

Vengeance Strikes

Like heedless children at play while the obliterating tempest gathers and breaks, the leading characters in "Scaramouche" are vividly etched by this great director's hand against a background of emotional excitement culminating in one of the greatest days of horror in world history—August 10, 1789, when the rule of a nobility more corrupt, powerful and despotic even than the king, was swept from the scene by an enraged, maddened, starving rabble.

The enraptured attention of the audience while these great scenes were in progress of unfoldment, the nervous thrills that seemed to pass through the mind of each spectator, charging the theatre like one vast galvanic cell, convinced this reviewer, if additional conviction were necessary, that here is a photoplay of gargantuan proportions. Each scene, indeed, stands out cameo-like, delicate, beautiful—yet the total impression of "Scaramouche" is of tremendous, overwhelming strength.

To see George Siegmann as "Danton," swinging along with that surging, half-naked mob, grinning weirdly and dripping with blood and sweat, is to have one great, epochal thrill. And the motley types that fill the revolutionary mob scenes make you shudder at their stark, brutal reality.

Navarro Scores

In contrast, beautiful as a dream is Alice Terry as "Aline," and charming indeed the dollhouse setting of her aristocratic circle, while Ramon Navarro as "Andre-Louis" would make even an unromantic heart beat just a little faster. His is the dashing role of swordplay, hair-breadth escapes afoot and a-horse, beautiful love scenes contrasted with desperate encounters with maddened men.

And for drama, what more could anyone ask than a man dueling his arch enemy to the death, only to find out that the man is his father, and that the woman he would turn over to the howling mob as a traitor of France is his own mother?

Rich indeed is the tapestry of events in "Scaramouche," as presented on the screen of the Glendale Theatre this week, through the artistry of Rex Ingram and his splendid cast. It is a picture everyone will want to see once, and that many will see twice.

Install New Officers At C. E. Gathering

Following the annual election by members of the Epworth League of Casa Verdugo church, new officers installed at the meeting Sunday night at 6:30 were: President, Margaret Taylor; first vice-president, Lowella Wright; second vice-president, Erma Garber; third vice-president, Frances Drake; fourth vice-president, Malcolm Barnard; secretary-treasurer, Blanche Tallman.

Administration Wins Point In Tax Fight

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The administration scored its first important victory in the Senate's tax reduction fight today when the corporation tax, increased from 12 1-2 per cent to 14 per cent by the finance committee, was approved. Democrats announced, however, that they would offer a substitute tomorrow, placing the corporation tax upon a graduated basis, as used in determining the surtax rates.

The Fellow Glendale Is After

Thousands are headed from the east to Los Angeles. When they get to Los Angeles they begin to look around for a home. I can personally point you to fifty families living in Glendale who stumbled on to Glendale when they were temporarily located in Los Angeles. It was not from any advertisement they saw. Proper advertising in Los Angeles publications will reach the people who are in California looking for a home. We have raised a neat sum already for this purpose, but we want to do the thing right—as well, if not better, as does Alhambra, Pomona, Santa Mónica and others. When someone solicits you on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, think of "The Fellow Glendale Is After" and not of those who should not come. If you are in a position to help increase our population, sign on the dotted line to help bring "The Fellow Glendale Is After."

FAMOUS ARTISTS WILL PLAY HERE FOR CHAUTAUQUA

Comic Opera, 'Robin Hood,' to Be Staged by Clever Cast of Actors

A glance at the lineup of attractions to be presented here by the Chautauqua Association this season is enough to assure one that it is by far the strongest and most spectacular program ever offered. The Chautauqua will come to Glendale during the week of May 12.

The announcement alone that May Valentine's Opera company of 30 people is to produce "Robin Hood," De Koven's master comic opera, with the same cast which has appeared in the leading theaters all over the United States, is sufficient to arouse unusual attention in the offerings of Chautauqua week. The West will welcome the opportunity of hearing again Harry Pfeil, tenor, in the title role; beautiful Paula Ayres, contralto, as Alan-a-dale, and Hallen Mostyn, who has appeared as the "Sheriff of Nottingham" nearly 2000 times. Other prominent names appearing in the cast are: Bonnie Cox, soprano, who appears as "Maid Marian"; Irene Heinberg, soprano, as "Annabelle"; Glenn Shaver, basso, as "Will Scarlet," whose singing of the famous "Armorer's Song" in the last act is a feature of every performance; Clarence Zink, lyric tenor, is a splendid "Sir Guy"; and E. P. Richardson as "Little John" is a sensation in the wonderful baritone number "Brown October Ale." Every chorus member possesses a solo voice. The conductor, A. G. Manning, was formerly director for the English Opera Company and Bizet Opera Company, and is one of the most accomplished musicians in America. He plays several instruments and is also a composer of note.

"The Great Commoner"

For those who prefer the spoken drama to opera, is offered Kettering's great historical comedy-drama, "The Great Commoner." This greatest of all Lincoln plays will be presented by the Elias Day Players, produced by the famous Chicago coach, Elias Day, under the personal direction of the author.

The entertainment list includes the name of America's greatest platform humorist, Ralph Bingham. Those who have heard his Victor records will be particularly interested in hearing this premier mirth-producer in person.

The musical entertainment list features The Guatemala Marimba Band, native Central American musicians, who have made a wonderful record of eastern triumphs since arriving in this country seven years ago; Roach-Freeman Duo, two versatile ladies, who are veritable "gloom-chasers"; and The Ralston Entertainers, three charming musical maids who feature a lovely costumed bit, "Songs and Stories of the Sixties."

Two Big Concerts

Of great musical importance are the two concerts to be presented by the Ault Concert Artists. This company is composed of a mixed quartet of splendid solo voices and an accomplished solo pianist and accompanist. The Ernest Camble concert party also give two concerts which will appeal strongly to all lovers of good music.

DR. PAINE PLANS TO ATTEND MEET

Reunion of College Class to Bring Osteopaths to Kirksville, Mo.

A most interesting college reunion of doctors is being arranged for this summer, according to Dr. Caroline Paine.

This meeting will bring together the members of the 1908 class of the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, of which the doctor was a member.

"The reunion is to be one of the most interesting features of a unique homecoming," says Dr. Paine, "when for ten days or more the osteopaths of the world come back to Kirksville, which has been the home of their science for fifty years.

Still's Discovery

"Although Dr. A. T. Still established his home in Kirksville almost immediately after announcing his discovery of osteopathy, yet he went on alone for the next eighteen years, except for such help as his sons could give him.

"By that time, people were coming by thousands, not only from all the surrounding states, but from all corners of America, to be treated by the new drugless therapy. It was a physical impossibility for Dr. Still and his family to care for them. Among the healed were many who clamored to be taught the new science, and so in 1812 the American School of Osteopathy was founded.

Home of Osteopathy

"Other colleges have flourished in other parts of the country, but Kirksville has remained the home and fountainhead of osteopathy, and so in this, its semi-centennial year, its practitioners are coming back, several thousand strong, to celebrate. There will be several conventions of special groups during the week preceding May 25, but on that date a great memorial service will be held for Dr. A. T. Still, and during the rest of that week the American Osteopathic Association will occupy the st ge every day.

"Various social events will take place during the evenings, and this class reunion is one of these."

GLENDALE YOUNG, PROGRESSIVE IN SPIRIT, IS CLAIM

Reasons for Growth of City Told in Letter from Recent Letter

"The big majority of Glendalians are wide awake, progressive people who are up on their toes every minute. Youth and progress go hand in hand. The people of Glendale are young. Those not youthful in years are young and progressive in spirit and ideas," are the conclusions drawn by Mrs. Harmon R. Bennett of 1221 East Colorado street, in a "booster" letter to The Glendale Evening News, inspired by the present drive for $50,000 for advertising purposes.

The writer, a comparatively newcomer in Glendale, is impressed with the astounding growth of Glendale, but insists that it is not mysterious but a reasonable growth due to the splendid spirit of the citizens. The letter follows:

Reasons For Growth

GLENDALE

By a Booster

Mrs. Harmon R. Bennett

Glendale is known everywhere as the fastest growing city in America, and many marvel at its growth as at some great miracle to be understood; but there is a substantial reason why Glendale is the fastest growing city in America. She has marvelous climate, beautiful scenery, and splendid location, yes—but many another town in Southern California has similar advantages, yet has not grown as Glendale has grown. Why is it? Because the big majority of Glendalians are wide awake, progressive people who are up on their toes every minute.

Youth and progress go hand in hand. The people of Glendale are young. Those who are not youthful in years are young and progressive in spirit and ideas.

Glendalians are not a class of idle rich or idle poor. They are a busy folk having real work to do, and they do it.

Can See Difference

Compare the average, wide-awake Glendalian with the average citizen of some of our other Southern California cities and towns (not so long ago our own little city was merely a town), and you will note the difference for yourself. Where will you find men (and women too) who will work as cheerfully,as untiringly, and as unselfishly, for the good of their community as the Glendalians? The untiring efforts on the $50,000 drive for advertising purposes is an example of this. This fund will be used to advertise Glendale as the very finest city in all America to make your home—and will they stop then? No indeed! The citizens of Glendale will continue to work, as they have in the past, to make it be the city it is advertised to be—the very finest place for your home in all America.

Then it is not a mysterious growth—but a reasonable, it astounding growth, due to the splendid citizens of Glendale.

This "mid-week sale day" is an event of the utmost importance. It is a splendid demonstration of the advantages of shopping in Glendale. It is the combined effort of leading merchants to firmly establish Thursday as a day of decidedly worth-while values.

Let's, all of us, every woman and every man, too, take advantage of this opportunity to supply our needs at great big savings.

Be sure to read the Thursday Shopping News section of The Glendale Evening News, Wednesday, April 30.

CARDINALS SHOW RESPECT FOR LAW

Hayes and Mundelein Refuse to Have Wine Served at Receptions

A most timely clipping from the Houston Post has been sent to The Glendale Evening News by Mrs. Margaret M. Gale of 122 North Cedar street, who, as a prominent Daughter of the American Revolution, is keenly interested in everything tending to a better America.

The clipping deals with respect for the law and is herewith printed:

"Two prelates of the Catholic church in America were called to the Vatican a few days ago and consecrated as cardinals by the pope.

No Wine Allowed

"When the receptions to the visiting American churchmen were planned, the new cardinals astonished the people of Rome by refusing to allow wine to be served at those affairs.

"Both Cardinals Hayes and Mundelein took the position that since prohibition is the law of America, they as American citizens, could not violate that law, even though they were in foreign territory where the law did not apply.

"Their action was a notable example of display of moral courage. It was a service to the prohibition cause, since it served to teach the people of Italy and of other countries to respect the law of America. There has been too much of a disposition abroad not to take prohibition in the United States seriously.

Respect for Law

"More than that it was a fine lesson in obedience to law, and an encouragement to law enforcement. Cardinal Hayes is from New York and Cardinal Mundelein is from Chicago, the two wettest places in America, no doubt. They wield great influence in those centres, and it is gratifying to find them preaching by example respect for law to the people in their home cities, the majority of whom are not in sympathy with the prohibition law.

"Neither of the cardinals has been active in promoting prohibition. But they show that they regard the question of law enforcement and respect for law as bigger than the prohibition question. They are for obedience to the law of their land, regardless of their personal views of the law. That is their message to America. That is a message all patriotic citizens must accept and indorse, without respect to creed, race, section, or political affiliation."

Federal Aid Sought In Slave Situation

FRESNO, April 28.—Federal aid will be sought to cope with the Pacific coast Chinese slave situation, states Miss Donaldina Cameron, secretary of the Chinese Presbyterian school in San Francisco and for many years active against the traffic in Chinese girls. Miss Cameron is in Fresno aiding officers in a search for Tang Shee, an alleged slave girl who was taken in a raid of the Bing Kong Tong convention headquarters two weeks ago but who failed to appear in court for a hearing on her case. Her bond of $500 was forfeited. Traffic in Chinese girls is becoming serious from Vancouver to San Diego, Miss Cameron decla and she added that she and other missionaries interested in the race would seek the aid of the government.

Clothing has been made of the fibrous portions of wood, and Germans and Austrians have used the textile for table cloths, harness and many other uses.

POEM SENT FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

'The Under Current,' Written by S. F. Fiester, Filled with Thought Gems

During recent weeks many poems have been sent to The Glendale Evening News by readers and friends and the true worth of these poetical compositions can in a measure be judged by the hearty approval they have received upon being printed in our columns.

Herewith is printed a poem submitted by Mrs. E. M. Kennedy of 327 North Belmont street, and was written by a friend, S. F. Fiester of 22 T street, Washington, D. C.

Under the title "The Under-Current" the poem reads:

"O judge not from the ripple,
That seems on the surface to float;
For the heart oft hides its sorrow,
And the ripple is only its cloak;
For they who seem most joyous
And running over with glee,
Are often times the saddest,
Though little suspected by thee.

For if you would hear the music
Of the under-current's flow,
You must enter the heart's affections
And pass to the depths below;
And patiently sit and listen
Through the long and silent hours,
'Till hope, grown weary with waiting,
Revealeth a blight on the flowers.

For the voice of the under-current
Is only revealed to those,
Who by long and faithful service
Prove an interest in our woes;
And it lends to me a pleasure,
To sit and listen and hear,
The voice of the under-current,
As it throbs upon the ear.

Not for the facts of the story,
Not for the secrets exposed,
But that I should be counted worthy
Of the confidence reposed;
And to hear another's sorrows
Makes mine the lighter to bear,
And my burden oft is lifted
On sharing a brother's care."

The American Bar Association is nearly forty-six years old and has approximately 17,000 members.

FRIENDS GATHER AT CELEBRATION OF ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skelton Mark Fifty-five Years Of Wedded Life

By RUTH SPAFFORD

Of the Evening News Staff

Artistic arrangements of spring flowers from California's gardens, beautiful gifts, messages and greetings from relatives and friends, formed a beautiful setting for the celebration of the fifty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skelton of 331 Fairview avenue, held Saturday afternoon at the G. A. R. hall on South Glendale avenue.

The affair had been arranged by their daughter, Miss Lenora Skelton, who invited the members of N. P. Banks post and Women's Relief corps, and other friends,, to commemorate with their nuptial day upon the fifty-fifth anniversary. There were over 200 guests present.

Relatives who shared with Mr. and Mrs. Skelton the joy and pleasure of this occasion, and who occupied seats on the platform beside the honoree were their daughters, and son-in-law, Miss Lenora Skelton of Glendale and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Weideman and son, Charles R. Weideman, the Skeltons' only grandchild, of Riverside; Mrs. Skelton's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James McEwen of Postville, Ia., and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Marsh of Chicago, who made the trip here especially to be present at the anniversary celebration. Other relatives in attendance were Mr. Skelton's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Taylor of Clear Lake, Ia.

Maid of Honor

Other geusts seated on the platform were Mrs. C. A. Ripley of Long Beach, who attended Mrs. Skelton as maid of honor at the wedding ceremony so many years a go. Mrs. Julian B. Hayes and Miss Mary Bennett, president of the Women's Relief corps, and Comrade T. C. Fuller, commander of the G. A. R. post, also occupied seats of honor.

A splendid program, including musical selections, readings and impromptu talks, sounded a patriotic keynote throughout the afternoon.

The first selection on the program was given by Comrade Bob Taylor, who sang in his usual enthusiastic manner, "Swords of Bunker Hill."

Mrs. J. L. Simmons, rendered two humorous readings, "The Usual Way" and "When the Paper Doesn't Come," which were greatly enjoyed.

Frank Booth, well-known Glendalian and vocalist, gave several tenor solos. The first selection, "A Tribute to Mother," and "Mother McCree," were sung unaccompanied, and for the last selection, "Daddy," Nana King Custer played the piano accompaniment.

Miss Helen Page delighted the guests with two humorous readings, "If" and "The Drive From the Rear.'

Nana King Custer, versatile, pianist and soloist, sang, "Marguerite,' "Annie Laurie" and "When You and I Were Young, Maggie. "The last two selections were request numbers.

Girl Scouts Sing

As a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Skelton, the members of Girl Scouts troop No. 3, attired in their uniforms, made their entrance, and, accompanied by their scout leader, sang, "America' the Beautiful" and "Love's Old Sweet

Daily Greeting To News Readers

Prayers are to the soul what the dew of God is to the flowers of the field. . . . Why should not that precious dew fall even now, and always, for all of us, upon the fields of life? —Canon Farrar.

ENCOURAGING LAWLESSNESS

There is a spirit of lawlessness rampant today, especially as regards the eighteenth amendment. And as long as the American people make a joke of this law and wink at those who break it this lawlessness will prevail. The magazines, the novels, the movies and even the daily newspapers are offenders in this regard. There is little fiction that does not take into account the bootlegger and his customers. The squib writer and the paragrapher seem to think there is nothing funny save references to these same law breakers and, of course, the news columns of the papers reek with the doings of those who break the law.

This treatment of the bootlegger as if he were a matter of course, this constant reference to the men and women who patronize him as though they were respectable members of society, are teaching young and old disrespect for law. Illicit traffic in liquor is the common and proper thing. So we should believe from what we read.

Likewise if we had no knowledge of life aside from reading modern fiction and seeing the modern movie we should never dream that there are women in the United States who do not smoke cigarets.

There are bootleggers, there are law breakers who patronize them, there are women who smoke cigarets. But the very great majority of American men and women are law abiding, the very great majority of American women do not smoke and have no desire to, the very great majority of American people work hard and play hard at clean amusements. Why can we not hear something about this big majority in some of the things we read? Why is the law-breaking idle class played up for us constantly in our fiction and in our newspapers? Do we have to break the law to be interesting?

STATE'S TRANSPORTATION LINES

Southern California needs to recognize the power for good its transportation lines may be in promoting the prosperity of not only this section, but the state at large. Traveling through the state one recognizes the dependence which is placed on not only the steam and electric railways, but the motor transport as well.

The rolling stock of the railways was never in seemingly better condition. That cannot be said of all the electric lines which find busses are stiff contenders for business. But the latter are convenient and comfortable, as well as economical. They are filling a big place in this world of speed and should be recognized as a legitimate factor.

The investment by the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and other railroads is almost beyond the comprehension of the ordinary financier. And the development which is ahead of them will involve many more millions of dollars.

California has but only started to progress. It is just emerging from the "wild and wooly." Imagine if you can the population of New York state and Massachusetts concentrated here and you have a picture of what this state is destined to be.

Cooperation with the railroads in their enterprises is essential to the rapid upbuilding of the Pacific empire. No stone should be placed in their path for selfish reasons. The same holds true with electric lines and motor stages.

California will be as great as people will permit themselves to think.

HELP PREVENT FOREST FIRES

With the coming of summer days Southern California may look forward to more brush blazes and forest fires in its hills and mountains. It needs to be organized to combat the menace. Better yet, every preventive measure should be taken to see that no fires start.

Although the late rains have materially reduced the danger of fire, it should be kept in mind by the public that the countryside becomes very dry by the middle of July and remains so for a period of four or five months.

What is needed now is support for the federal and state force employed to protect our forests, as well as the volunteer organizations which banded together last year when a common cause made all realize that another Berkeley disaster may visit anyone of a half dozen southland communities at any time.

Fire-fighting, like military battle, is no child's play. It requires trained men and leaders who can outgeneral the elements. Past experiences have proved that most fires passed out of control for hours because of a lack of experienced fire fighters.

Civic organizations should now give their attention to aiding in a campaign for fire protection rather than waiting until the price of procrastination has been paid.

Help prevent fires and prepare to fight them.

"JUST GETTING BY"

The office of the county superintendent of schools of Los Angeles county has made a survey of the public schools hereabouts. School leaders of the county have talked to pupils, teachers and parents. And one official commented on the fact that many pupils get through school by the "skin of their teeth," to use a well-known phrase. They escape illiteracy by reason of superior advantages, but they nevertheless have little to boast of.

"Just getting by" is the chief evil tendency among those afforded educational opportunity. A willingness to just "get by" is what ails all sorts and conditions of folk in the country.

The cause of "just getting by" is laziness; at the root of laziness, mental or physical, is a shortage of self-respect. It might be possible to demonstrate to the youngsters not yet through school that doing one's best is a reward in itself.

It may be true there is no fool like an old fool, but some of the younger crowd still have hopes of earning the right to wear the emblem.

Rubbing elbows with a man is one thing. Rubbing hub caps is another.

Fair prices, well selected stocks and perfect service almost always keep the bulk of the shopping dollars in the home town.

Recent rains caused millions of California poppies to arise and nod their heads in thankfulness.

The merchant who fails to broadcast his message can't expect buyers to tune in. They don't even know he exists.

The Wonderful Visit

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There are two kinds of people who go to theatres. One kind to see the same thing over and over; the other kind to see something new.

The lower the order of the theatre, and the more it appeals to the vulgar mob, the more it attempts only to show the audience what it has seen before and expects to see again. Managers of vaudeville know that the spectators will not tolerate anything new. They want certain things. They want a dance, a song, a monologue, a playlet, an acrobatic performance, trained animals and instrumental music.

People go to vaudeville because they know exactly what they are going to see.

The same thing is true of the large portion of what is called the legitimate stage. Those audiences enjoy grand opera the most who know the operas by heart.

A successful playwright who puts on a show that will run for two or three years is one who deals with situations that have been consecrated by long usage. The people are used to them and understand them.

All this is not necessarily wrong. People go to the theatre to be diverted. Most of them live surface lives and only surface amusements can entertain them.

But there is another and a smaller class who are constantly searching the theatre for some new light for the spirit; some new glimpse into the inscrutable problems of life.

This class is not large because it thinks and loves to think. It is not constantly engaged in running away from life and in trying to forget; it loves life and tries to understand.

Once in a blue moon a play is presented that is sheer, beautiful, creative imagination.

Those who come under the classification of "theatregoers" do not care for it. Professional critics are as hostile towards it as bishops are toward heretics.

But it is this kind of play that justifies the theatre. The theatre must stand or fall, in the long run, by the value of its contribution to life. The test of a play is, does it widen the horizon, does it deepen and enrich the sympathies, does it sharpen the vision, does it, on the whole, refresh and improve the human spirit?

The theatre, at its best, ought to mean more to mankind than the pulpit, for it appeals strictly to the imagination and the imagination is the real source of character and morals. Besides, the theatre charges admission and what we pay for always does us more good than what is given away for nothing.

A quite amazing play, which illustrates the better type, is "The Wonderful Visit," by H. G. Wells and St. John Ervine. It depicts an angel who visits an ordinary English village. As he comes he is shot at, for he is taken to be some strange bird. The week or two he spends in the village gives us a brilliant picture of what tragedy would ensue from the contact of our conventional life with pure ideals and intelligence.

The whole thing is an enormously clever comment on what we call civilization.

In the search for the unusual the dramatists too often show us the sordid and repulsive things of life as though these were the most real. The truth is, however, that the most real things are the things that present the greatest contrast to the hypocrisies of convention; the nobilities and beauties of life.

It is doubtful whether human nature is enriched or improved, it is certainly not gladdened, by representations of vileness, horror and cruelty. Such things are only tolerable when they serve to relieve and to emphasize the presence and power of goodness, of beauty.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE SOUND
(From Hollywood Citizen)

Here is a new line of thought on our supposedly reckless and dissolute American youth.

It comes from Dr. A. S. Wright, professor in a technical school, whose scientific training may be supposed to have qualified him for accurate observation and unbiased conclusion.

The American flapper, says this professor, is not headed for the dogs at all.

The fact that she wears knickers, short skirts and trousers on occasion simply shows that she has good sense.

The prudery of thirty or forty years ago, he maintains, produced far less charming and wholesome young women than does the honest frankness of today.

This frankness is sometimes misunderstood, and has resulted in alarming stories of college life that have little or no foundation in fact.

He finds youthful ideals motivated by a deep sense of social justice.

The idealism of the younger generation is no less real and valuable, he holds, because it is practical. In fact, he prefers this to the vague idealism which, however lofty and spiritual, often failed to get anywhere.

The new generation, he feels, is not only sound at the core, but is going to accomplish something.

It will be worth waiting to see, for such of the older people as have the time and patience.

In the boy and girl now growing up, and seeing a new world with new and unafraid eyes, there may be power for fine accomplishment such as their shocked and uncomprehending elders have never dreamed.

FINAL INDIGNITY
(From Stockton Independent)

The old faithful stand-bys—the army horses and mules—are not going to escape the invasion of modern inventions. As if they had not suffered enough indignity by being replaced by all sorts of machinery and "flivvers" now comes the last straw—in the future they are to be groomed by the vacuum cleaner. The cavalry board of the army has recommended this innovation because of the time saved, for, while it takes twenty-four minutes to groom a horse with brush and comb, the job can be completed in twelve minutes with a vacuum cleaner.

While one does not ordinarily sentimentalize over a mule, some way it seems as if his record on the other side a few short years ago entitles him to some personal service, and to the real lover of horses, 'twill be some time one fancies before he hangs up the curry comb and brush even for so great a convenience as a vacuum cleaner.

DUTY IS TO VOTE
(From Pasadena Star-News)

The duty is upon every good citizen, at all times, to vote in all elections. But especially binding is the duty, this Presidential year, to exercise the franchise. Issues and candidacies will be of tremendous importance in this campaign. Responsibility rests upon the intelligent voters who possess character and conviction, to be at the polls on election day—at the primary first and at the general election in November. Default in this on the part of good citizens would react hurtfully upon the quality of government. The people get the quality of government they demand, provided they back up their demands with their votes.

Taxicabs had their origin in China about 600 years ago, when natives carried passengers in a vehicle and dropped a pebble in a receptacle to measure off every mile that was traveled.

A device for threshing grain that may be operated on a table in the house, has been patented.

Little Studies —of— Human Nature

NEVER SATISFIED WITH WHAT WE HAVE

It is a trait of Human Nature never to be satisfied with the wealth that he possesses. No matter how much or how little he has he always wants more. Money and the things that money can buy rarely satisfy us for long. There is something just beyond our power to possess that we need to make us happy. This is just as true of the multimillionaire as it is of the man who works for a small wage.

A thousand dollars seems untold wealth to a certain man. By industry and saving he accumulates this amount. If only he owned a home how happy he and his family would be! He acquires a home. What is life without a car? He needs ten thousand dollars to be fairly comfortable. The more he gets the more he wants, but he never gets quite enough.

An increased income means a change in the manner of living and this change is likely to be out of all proportion to the increase in the income. That is why we never have enough. It is too much to ask Human Nature to go backward in this respect; to return to cheaper and simpler living once he has tasted the sweets of high life. And this applies to all manner and conditions of men.

Occasionally we read of some man refusing an inheritance. He claims to be satisfied with what he has and with his standard of living. We call him eccentric or even crazy. We cannot understand that because Human Nature always wants more this added wealth cannot be counted on to bring happiness. Money is a splendid thing and a great power in the world. It cannot be said that money never brings happiness for it often does. It brings comfort, release from want and worry and leisure for the finer things of life. But it rarely, if ever, brings complete satisfaction. We never get enough of it.

Ford and Rockefeller have untold wealth. They want for nothing that money can buy but it is doubtful if they are as happy as the man who is paying for a little home in Glendale. They do a great deal of good, give away vast sums for charity and philanthropy but they are constantly reaching out for more wealth and more power in the business world.

This habit of always wanting more is not such a bad characteristic of old Human Nature as it might seem. It is well to be ambitious and desire to grow. The constant striving to better his condition is commendable in our old friend. But there are things in the world more worth-while than money and material wealth and if old Human Nature could aspire to some of these things he would be much more likely to find complete satisfaction.

A Thought That Came Today

By HARVEY E. WESTGATE of Glendale

THE HOMELESS HOME

The saddest sight I ever saw
Was a mansion grand with gilded dome,
A house wherein each wish was law—
But no one loved it as a home.

From far and near the gardener's art
Had decked the grounds with rarest flowers,
And perfumed blossoms did their part,
In violet bed or climbing bowers.

Rich, priceless paintings on the walls,
(Cold marble walls with gold inlaid),
Velvet-carpeted rooms and halls,
And furniture which artists made.

Beautiful dresses, silken gowns,
And fair of face the ones who wore them,
But, ah, alas, the tell-tale frowns
And signs that life must always bore them.

The saddest sight I ever saw
Was a mansion grand with gilded dome,
A house wherein each wish was law,
But no one loved it as a home.

The After House

THE STORY

DR. RALPH LESLIE, just graduated from medical college, and just over an attack of typhoid fever ships on the yacht Ella as a sort of deck steward. He is penniless and thinks this will be a good opportunity to recuperate. Marshall Turner is the owner. His wife, her sister Elsa, a divorcee named Mrs. Johns, and a man named Vail are the passengers. Turner is dissipated and evidently jealous of his wife and Vail. There is a crew of fourteen, including the stewardess, a maid named Karen Hansen, the cook and Williams, the butler. Charlie Jones, a German sailor with a bent for religion, is friendly to Leslie. Captain Richardson and Turner have an argument over running the ship. Turner, drunk, appoints Singleton captain. Richardson knocks Singleton down, and threatens to put Turner in irons if he interferes with the running of the boat. Mrs. Johns asks Leslie to sleep near the passengers' staterooms, in a pantry, as she is afraid of trouble. One night Schwartz, the second mate, disappears overboard, though nobody sees him jump. On the night of August 12 Leslie wakes in the pantry to find himself locked in. He unscrews the lock, hears a woman's screams, runs to Vail's room for help—and finds Vail dead, murdered with an axe.

VII—WHICH IS THE MURDERER?

The match burnt out, and I dropped it. I remember mechanically extinguishing the glowing end with my heel, and then straightening to such a sense of horror as I have never felt before or since. I groped for the door; I wanted air, space, the freedom from lurking death of the open deck.

I had been sleeping with my revolver beside me on the pantry floor. Somehow or other I got back there and found it. I made an attempt to find the switch for the cabin lights, and, failing, revolver in hand, I ran into the chartroom and up the after companionway. Charlie Jones was at the wheel, and by the light of a lantern I saw that he was bending to the right, peering in at the chartroom window. He turned when he heard me.

"What's wrong" he asked. "I heard a yell a minute ago. Turner on the rampage?" He saw my revolver then, and, letting go the wheel, threw up both his hands. "Turn that gun away, you fool!"

I could hardly speak. I lowered the revolver and gasped: "Call the captain! Vail's been murdered!"

"Good God!" he said. "Who did it?" He had taken the wheel again, and was bringing the ship back to her course. I was turning sick and dizzy, and I clutched at the railing of the companionway.

"I don't know. Where's the captain?"

"The mate's around." He raised his voice. "Mr. Singleton!" he called.

There was no time to lose, I felt. My nausea had left me. I ran forward to where I could dimly see Singleton looking in my direction.

"Singleton! Quick! I called. "Bring your revolver."

He stopped and peered in my direction.

"Who is it?"

"Leslie. Come below, for God's sake!"

He came slowly toward me, and in a dozen words I told him what had happened. I saw then that he had been drinking. He reeled against me, and seemed at a loss to know what to do.

"Get your revolver," I said, "and wake the captain."

He disappeared into the forward house, to come back a moment later with a revolver. I had got a lantern in the meantime, and ran to the forward companionway which led into the main cabin. Singleton followed me.

"Where's the captain?" I asked.

"I didn't call him," Singleton replied, and muttered something unintelligible under his breath.

Swinging the lantern ahead of me, I led the way down the companionway. Something lay huddled at the foot. I had to step over it to get down. Singleton stood above, on the steps. I stooped and held the lantern close, and we both saw that it was the captain, killed as Vail had been. He was fully dressed except for his coat, and as he lay on his back, his cap had been placed over his mutilated face.

I thought I heard something moving behind me in the cabin, and wheeled sharply, holding my revolver leveled. The idea had come to me that the crew had mutinied, and that every one in the after house had been killed. The idea made me frantic; I thought of the women, of Elsa Lee, and I was ready to kill.

"Where is the light switch?" I demanded of Singleton, who was still on the companionway steps, swaying.

"I don't know," he said, and collapsed, sitting huddled just above the captain's body, with his face in his hands.

I saw I need not look to him for help, and I succeeded in turning on the light in the swinging lamp in the center of the cabin. There was no sign of any struggle, and the cabin was empty. I went back to the captain's body, and threw a rug over it. Then I reached over and shook Singleton by the arm.

"Do something!" I raved. "Call the crew. Get somebody here, you drunken fool!"

He rose and staggered up the companionway, and I ran to Miss Lee's door. It was closed and locked, as were all the others except Vail's and the one I had broken open. I reached Mr. Turner's door last. It was locked, and I got no response to my knock. I remembered that his room and Vail's connected through a bath, and, still holding my revolver leveled, I ran into Vail's room again, this time turning on the light.

A night light was burning in the bathroom, and the door beyond was unlocked. I flung it open and stepped in. Turner was lying on his bed, fully dressed and at first I thought he too had been murdered. But he was in a drunken stupor. He sat up, dazed, when I shook him by the arm.

"Mr. Turner!" I cried. "Try to rouse yourself man! The captain has been murdered, and Mr. Vail!"

He made an effort to sit up, swayed, and fell back again. His face was swollen and purplish, his eyes congested. He made an effort to speak but failed to be intelligible, I had no time to waste. Somewhere on the Ella the murderer was loose. He must be found.

I flung out of Turner's cabin as the crew, gathered from the forecastle and from the decks, crowded down the forward companionway. I ran my eye over them. Every man was there, Singleton below by the captain's body, the crew, silent and horror-struck, grouped on the steps; Clarke, McNamara, Burns, Oleson, and Adams. Behind the crew, Charlie Jones had left the wheel and stood peering down, until sharply ordered back, Williams, with a bandage on his head, and Tom, the mulatto cook, were in the group.

I stood, revolver in hand, staring at the men. Among them, I felt sure, was the murderer. But which one? All were equally pale, equally terrified.

"Boys," I said, "Mr. Vail and your captain have been murdered. The murderer must be on the ship—one of ourselves." There was a murmur at that. "Mr. Singleton, I suggest that these men stay together in a body, and that no one be allowed to go below until all have been searched and all weapons taken from them."

Singleton had dropped into a chair, and sat with his face buried in his hands, his back to the captain's body. He looked up without moving, and his face was gray.

"All right," he said. "Do as you like. I'm sick."

He looked sick. Burns, who had taken Schwartz's place as second mate, left the group and came toward me.

"We'd better waken the women," he said. "If you'll tell them, Leslie, I'll take the crew on deck and keep them there."

Singleton seemed dazed, and when Burns spoke of taking the men on deck, he got up dizzily.

"I'm going too," he muttered. "I'll go crazy if I stay down here with that."

The rug had been drawn back to show the crew what had happened. I drew it reverently over the body again.

After the men had gone, I knocked at Mrs. Turner's door. It was some time before she roused; when she answered, her voice was startled.

"What is it?"

"It's Leslie, Mrs. Turner. Will you come to the door?"

"In a moment."

She threw on a dressing-gown, and opened the door.

"What is wrong?"

I told her, as gently as I could. I thought she would faint; but she pulled herself together and looked past me into the cabin.

"That is—"

"The captain, Mrs. Turner."

"And Mr. Vail?"

"In his cabin."

"Where is Mr. Turner?"

"In his cabin, asleep."

She looked at me strangely, and, leaving the door, went to her sister's room, next. I heard Miss Lee's low cry of horror, and almost immediately the two women came to the doorway.

"Have you seen Mr. Turner?" Miss Lee demanded.

"Just now."

"Has Mrs. Johns been told?"

"Not yet."

She went herself to Mrs. Johns' cabin, and knocked. She got an immediate answer, and Mrs. Johns, partly dressed, opened the door.

"What's the matter?" she demanded. "The whole crew is tramping outside my window. I hope we haven't struck an iceberg."

"Adele, don't faint, please. Something awful has happened."

"Turner! He has killed some one finally!"

Hush, for Heaven's sake! Wilmer has been murdered, Adele—and the captain."

What more tragedy and horror await the voyagers on the little yacht. Tomorrow—We find the Ax.

Pacifist Address Stirs Preachers' Ire

CHICAGO, April 28.—A pacifist address by the Rev. A. L. Heist, field secretary of the Methodist Social Service federation, turned a Methodist ministers' meeting in Chicago into a battle of words. Rev. Mr. Heist indorsed the action of pacifist students at Northwestern university and Garret Biblical Institute, who signed pledges refusing to defend their country in the event of war.

Rev. Stewart D. White said he "was not ready to sign the anti-defense" program. Rev. Dr. Truman R. Greene made a hot reply to the Heist speech, declaring that, if America and England had refused to participate in the world war, the world would have been crushed by a militaristic government.

FLOWER CANTATA TO BE GIVEN BY SCHOOL CHILDREN

Pupils of Grand View Will Appear In May Day Fete Thursday

May Day will be observed at the Grand View school Thursday night, May 1, when the pupils of the school will present the cantata, "The Carnival of Flowers," under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' association.

Four hundred pupils of the school will take part, 175 of them are to take prominent roles and to be elaborately costumed while the others will wear fancy caps. The Parent-Teacher association has been working for some time on the costumes which are to represent flowers.

Little Virginia Ogle is the Queen, and will represent a fragrant magnolia flower. Junior Fitch is the hero.

The cantata will be held out-of-doors and the opening scene is a bright sunshiny day in the forest when all the flowers awake. The flowers represented are the trumpet flowers, yellow jasmine, trillium, violets, strawberry blossoms, wafer lilies, sunflowers and green leaves.

Night Scene at Close

The carnival closes with a night scene when the fairies appear. Groups of children representing rain fairies, summer winds and breezes make their appearance at this time.

The production has been directed by Miss Helen Reynolds, assisted by Miss Vera Sinclair, Miss Faith Tarling and Mrs. Ethel Carpenter, Miss Erma Johnston of Los Angeles, is assisting as accompanist.

The association extends an invitation to all Glendalians to attend the cantata. A nominal charge of 25 cents' admission will be charged in order to defray the expense of the costumes and other incidental expenses connected with the production.

Song." Just before leaving the hall they presented a beautiful bouquet of red American Beauty roses tied with red, white and blue ribbons, to Mr. and Mrs. Skelton.

Another surprise feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a beautiful silk flag and standard to the honorees by their grandson. Chester R. Weideman. He first recited the famous Gettysburg address given by Lincoln, and later the poem, "Your Flag and My Flag," at the close of which he presented the flag to Mr. Skelton.

Other numbers on the program included cornet solos by Boy Scout Roscoe Westman, a well-known radio juvenile artist, and impromptu talks were given by Rev. C. R. Norton, chaplain of the post, and Rev. George F. LeClere. Comrade George W. Sanford recited two of his own compositions, "Building" and "Our Father's at the Helm."

Bugle calls were given by George Peters, Boy Scout.

Silver Gifts

Just before the close of the program, Mrs. M. Milligan, in behalf of the post and corps, presented Mr. and Mrs. Skelton with a beautiful silver meat fork, and silver bread tray, with their initial, "S," engraved upon it.

The program closed with the singing in unison of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the guests adjourned to the banquet hall, where refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

At this time Mr. and Mrs. Skelton were presented with a beautiful white cake decorated in white lilies and two American flags in colors, bearing the inscripton "55th Anniversary." This was a gold cake with a wreath of yellow and white flowers circled around it.

Mrs. Skelton, before her marriage fifty-five years ago was Miss Burnett Stiles, and she and Mr. Skelton were married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Stiles, on April 29, 1869, in Postville, Ia. She was a blushing bride of 18 summers, and he a young man just six years her senior.

Civil War Veteran

Mr. Skelton served in the Civil war with Company K of the 38th Infantry. He had two brothers in the Union army and one brother in the Confederate army. Only one brother is now living, George Skelton of Moose Lake, Minn., who was unable to be present last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Skelton and daughter, Miss Lenora Skelton, have been residents of California for the past six years. They have gained a host of friends here and in other southern California cities with their pleasing personalities and genial hospitality.

CITY NOT LIABLE

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—H. J. Pauly of Hawthorne will not be recompensed by the city for the damage done to his property by city garbage trucks. Pauly claimed the trucks broke down his hedge fence, but Jess E. Stephens says the city is under no legal liability.

COMMENT

That's All

Don't Go Beyond Depth
More Crime In Los Angeles
Regular Southland Weather
Have You Invested Yet?

By Gil A. Cowan

Lmitations of one's mental capacity should not be cause for suicide, yet very apparently a wealthy Los Angeles man last week committed suicide because he had become mired in the thinking of scientific life. He was a deep student of Oriental philosophy, at the same time amassing wealth and losing love.

But there is a limitation in the matter, and that is no man should go beyond his depth in higher thought. Neither should women. For it is maddening in many instances. The few who survive are noteworthy, but the many who perish, in soul, as well as body, are to be pitied.

Sacred science was the name of the cult which intrigued the dead man, it is said. It appears to be occultism, sincerely spread, perhaps, by exhorters, but if it was "too much" for one Theodore Beavers, a man of wealth and refinement and education, what will it do for the thousands of others interested in its study?

Another rush of crime hit Los Angeles in the last twenty-four hours. A week ago traffic tragedies were written into the police record. This last week-end was marked with burglaries, safe crackings and holdups. And more are bound to follow with unemployment.

Glendale and other suburban communities should take advantake of the plentiful labor market and get done those things which they have planned. Building of every description should be started now. Public work also should be done.

The only way to keep the public at peace with itself is to keep everyone busy. Idle hands find evil to do.

Rum runners and a $50,000 cargo are reported to have been captured at San Pedro last night. No doubt the whisky smugglers are legion, and the one or two captures only go to show that liquor ships anchored off the coast are supplying the flood of booze which is making this southland the bootleggers' paradise. Few people are cognizant of the amount of spirits being drunk. And the harder it is to get, the more determined the thirst.

Prohibition, as its exponents say, is no joke. Indeed, its enforcement is a serious matter. Only an armed force of thousands of men can expect to cope with the situation.

Beautiful weather is upon us. A finer day, a more beautiful morning you would not want to see. And in the sunset this afternoon there should be a radiance of springtime—a world awakened to growth and aware of gladness.

If you have not planted garden—and have a place for one—start it this evening. The joy of growing things, the care needed in cultivation, the very mixing with old Mother Earth, and the pride in possession of a patch of potatoes—all should appeal to the home-owner citizen.

Also, in planting flowers, making a lawn respectable or setting out shrubbery, one not only enhances the living qualities of the home, but adds materially to the value of property in the neighborhood.

And that's what Glendale needs—a city beautiful. Of course, you will do your part to make it so.

No reason under the sun why the committee collecting for the $50,000 advertising fund for this city should not sally forth and complete their task in the next two days.

Everyone believes in the future of Glendale. Now it is simply a matter of expressing that confidence in something material. There should be $100,000 spent in advertising Glendale this year.

But whatever is raised will be well worth the effort. Now let's go and do it.

Ward, scholarship; Robert St. Clair, athletics, pathfinding, scholarship.

These boys represent troops 1, 2 and 3, Glendale; troop 1 of La Crescenta.

A life Scout badge was presented to Gordon Bevens and the second highest honor of Scoutdom, that of Star Scout, was accorded Robert St. Clair and Charles Warfield.

Mr. Cheesman explains that so many honors went to troops 1, 2 and 3 of Glendale because they are the oldest Scout troops in Glendale, other troops having been formed but recently.

Workers Ready for Resumption of Drive button for every member of the family."

The five majors who are in charge of the new drive are Lyman P. Clark, Charles B. Guthrie, R. E. Johnston, George B. Karr and Dr. H. R. Boyer. The army of 100 workers is built around the nucleus of forty-three members of last week's teams who gathered for luncheon at the Harriett Mae tea room on Thursday noon, April 24.

Enthusiasm Grows

"Indications are that enthusiasm over the clean-up campaign will be keener if anything than that which marked the launching of the drive," Mr. Walters says. "All the workers are full of enthusiasm and each major is determined his division shall gather in the greatest total of subscriptions. Glendale has let it be known to the world that $50,000 is to be raised to advertise the city. Any total short of that sum would be a disgrace. We believe, on the contrary, that considerably in excess of the minimum will be raised. This can easily be done if averyone who has not yet contribu'ed will do his or her share.

"Advertising Glendale is a dollars and sense proposition—and Glendalians have the dollars as well as the sense to know that it must be done, and done quickly."

ing, the first effort to enter the mine to determine the fate of the entombed men was made by a rescue party equipped with gas resisting apparatus, but after penetrating 1500 feet into the shaft they were forced to abandon the effort because of the blocking of the passageway by debris. No traces of any miners were found along the way.

The explosion at the Benwood mine today is the second within a few months. In a previous one, two miners were killed by a gas blast.

Girl Is Injured When Auto Runs Into Truck

Miss Sophie Sanders, 410 Forrest avenue, Los Angeles, was cut about the head when a car in which she was riding, driven by Joseph LeBain, of Action, California, crashed into the rear of a truck on San Fernando road at 10 o'clock this morning.

The force of the impact drove the radiator and engine of LeBain's car back into the front seat. Miss Sanders was taken to Dr. H. R. Boyer's office where it was ascertained that the injuries were not serious.

DRUNKENNESS CHARGE

Officer Glenn Heminger arrested a man giving the name of D. R. McKeoun, 1437 Glendale boulevard, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Upon examination he was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. G. Kaemmerling.

East and West In Contest Over Paddock

ces would seem to indicate that eastern colleges hold the key to the middle distance situation, the Drake two-mile title being won in something like 8:03. At four miles, however, the westerners held the edge by a matter of 8 seconds or more.

That Settles That

The international question also was settled with definite finality. Eric Liddell, British champion, was twice beaten at 100 and 220 yards by eastern collegians and hardly seemed the dangerous Olympic factor his English records would seem to indicate. Cambridge uncovered just one-half miler, Douglas Lowe. He is a good one, so good, in fact, that it would not surprise the writer if he won the Olympic 800 meter race. Lowe looked like the world's best on Saturday.

Briggs' Terrace Road Is Closed by Guards

Persons who are desirous of hiking in the hills and mountains are warned by the county health department that the Briggs Terrace road beyond Utley Sanitarium has been closed, and only persons who live in that vicinity will be allowed to pass the quarantine guards. This restriction is limited to one round trip each day, and is made in the interests of the hoof-and-mouth disease fight.

Deputy Sheriffs Rowe and Mallick have been placed in charge of the area in that vicinity, and instructed to turn back all persons who are not bona fide residents, and who endeavor to walk up the Briggs Terrace road.

The fastest official airplane flight is registered under name of Lieutenant Williams who flew at the rate of 266.59 miles per hour at Michel Field.

SUNLAND

BAPTIST CHURCH NEARLY COMPLETE

Congregation Will Worship In Handsome New Building Within Few Weeks

Before many more weeks have passed the congregation of the Sunland Baptist church will be enjoying their new church in the Lancaster tract. Painters and carpenters are at work completing the interior finish and leaded glass windows are being fitted in the frames.

A Moorish effect is obtained by the raising of the roof in the center above the rest of the other part, providing for high windows that will give ample lighting for the interior. The walls are of stucco, with a pebble dash of yellow and white silica screenings. A large, light basement has been built under the building. The piano fund is keeping pace with the construction work, and the members of the church expect to have the instrument by the time the building is ready.

Plan Street Signs

A committee of three, consisting of George B. Shaffer, Lloyd Foster and Mr. Wakefield, was appointed by the Valley Center Improvement association at their last meeting to carry out the plans made for placing street signs in the Valley Center and Sunland territory.

A pamphlet describing in detail the work to be done by the county flood control department in the event that the proposed bonds carry on May 6, was destributed to the members. The estimated cost of the work and a map showing the locations of proposed improvements were included in the pamphlet, which was issued by Chief Engineer Reagan, of the flood control department.

On the motion by President Kirschman of the Valley Center Improvement association the regular meeting schedulled for Friday, April 25, was postponed to allow the members to attend the mass meeting at Tujunga, at which the representatives of the flood control department addressed the voters on the coming bond election, May 6.

New Subdivision

W. L. Brownell, who is handling the S. D. Percey subdivision, is also placing on the market a tract at First street and Michigan avenue. These lots will be sold as homesites and Mr. Brownell believes the lots facing on Michigan avenue will be in the heart of the future business district of Sunland, as the tendency seems to be toward that center.

Stakes are being set for a new street to be opened through the five-acre tract on the north side of Michigan avenue between Carleton way and the eucalyptus grove at Valley Center. Central avenue is also to be opened along the north line of this tract.

The study of the California missions was continued at the last meeting of the Monte Vista Women's club at the Sunland school auditorium. Papers on La Soledad, Santa Clara, San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel and San Fernando were read by members. Mrs. Chivers of Los Angeles contributed a vocal solo to the program, and Miss Catherine Crews gave a reading in Spanish dialect. The next business meeting of the club will be held May 13.

Entertains Club

Mrs. Jack Bloodgood was hostess to the Afternoon Sewing club Thursday. The previous meeting was held at the home of Miss Catherine Crews on Sherman avenue, and, after the afternoon's business had been disposed of, the meeting adjourned to the location at Monte Vista park being used by the Jack Pickford company in filming a new picture play. The Pickford company has been taking scenes at the park for several weeks.

Mrs. Susan French and daughter Ramona were Easter guests of Mrs. Frank Williams.

Instrumental and vocal numbers will feature the entertainment of the Sunland Chamber of Commerce to be given May 19 at Twin Pines pavilion. Other numbers will include a French colonial minuet in costume by the pupils of the Sunland school; a series of tableaux illustrating famous poems; a comedy skit, "Evidence," to be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scribner of Tujunga and Miss Catherine Crews of Sunland. A six-piece orchestra will furnish music for the dancing to follow the entertainment features.

Miss Novella Brundidge has been entertaining her brother and niece from the east, whom she has not seen for twelve years.

Several bullet holes in the walls and a few blood stains are silent evidence at the Spencer Corey home, Walnut drive and Los Angeles street, that one burglar got little but abuse for his trouble in breaking in. According to the report made, Corey returned home in the evening after a visit with friends and discovered an intruder going through his house. He got his light artillery into action and caused the burglar to leave suddenly and without ceremony. According to officers who investigated the affair, blood stains were found on the premises, and this may lead to the arrest of the housebreaker.

RARE MANUSCRIPT

Dr. Henry Noble McCracken, president of Vassar College for girls, has purchased one of the very rare Chaucer manuscripts. It has been in the possession of the family of the Earl of Cardigan since 1460. Dr. McCracken has placed it in the library of Vassar on loan, the purchase having been a personal acquisition.

EAGLE ROCK

SCHOOL CHILDREN REPEAT PAGEANT

Auditorium Packed as 500 Pupils Present Work of Local Author

The delightful indoor pageant, "Idylls of Spring," was presented again at the Eagle Rock school auditorium Saturday night, with a cast of 500 children under the direction of Mrs. Anne Harrison, past P.-T. A. president of that school, who wrote the play. Mrs. C. D. Wentworth supervised the beautiful costumes, which ranged the fairy realm from elfin figures through birds and butterflies to story-book characters in a world of make-believe suddenly very real.

Exceptional talent was shown on the part of many of the children and the productions marked the peak of amateur dramatic art in this community. Mrs. Harrison was assisted by an able corps of women, including Mrs. W. K. Kowan, who composed much of the music used; Mrs. C. D. Wentworth, who designed the costumes, and Mrs. Fitzmaurice Kelly, who trained the little dancers and directed several numbers presented by her own dance pupils.

Whites Off To Avalon

"Avalon, Catalina Island, California," read the baggage checks of W. L. White and family of Eagle Rock, who leave on May 1 for "the chewing gum isle," where Mr. White holds the franchise for supplying ice on the island and is also secretary and treasurer of the Catalina Speed Boat company.

The Catalina Speed Boat company owns and operates two of the fastest motor boats on the western coast, known to pleasure seekers throughout the country as Miss Catalina 1 and 2. According to Mr. White, Catalina is expecting a record number of tourists this summer and nothing will be left undone that could contribute to the visitor's amusement and pleasure.

Players Meet May 1

All interested in the Little Theatre movement are invited to meet with the Drama section of the Women's Twentieth Century club at the clubhouse on the afternoon of Thursday, May 1, when the Community Players will be reorganized and officers elected. Professor Lindsay will speak on "The Little Theatre Movement."

There will be an informal program, including a short dramatic sketch and other features. Committees will be appointed and instructed in their work. All the preliminaries attendant upon the final touches to the organization of the new group will be completed at this meeting.

Andrew S. Wilson, Kiwanis president and well known real estate dealer, will be chairman of the meeting.

BURBANK

PICK COMMITTEES TO ASSIST BOARD

Mayor Crawford Announces Personnel; Seek New School Building

The standing committees of the Burbank Board of Trustees, named by Mayor J. C. Crawford on the first meeting since election, are as follows:

Ordinance and Judiciary—Trustees Jackson, Watson and Nielsen.

Streets and Parkways—Nielsen, Mullin and Jackson.

Auditing and Financing—Jackson, Watson and Mullin.

Police and Fire—Nielsen, Watson and Jackson.

Parks, Planning and City Beautification—Watson, Nielsen and Mullin.

Sewers and Sanitation—Watson, Nielsen and Mullin.

Public Utilities—Mullin, Nielsen and Watson.

Commercial and Industrial—Watson, Mullin and Jackson.

Building—Mullin, Nielsen and Jackson.

It was decided that the personnel of the city planning commission would remain as before, with the substitution of A. J. Rose for F. Curt Miller, recently resigned city engineer and ex-officio member of the body. The commission now comprises: C. H. Kline, Mrs. Mida Fisher, E. L. White, J. J. King, W. A. Blanchard, J. C. Newcomer and A. J. Rose.

Plan Surprise Tonight

The Burbank board of education will meet tonight with a feeling of "pins and needles," knowing the avowed intention of the Community Improvement association of West Burbank to swoop down on them with a chorus of fifty-three paid up charter members: "We want a school house!"

The officers of the association are: J. F. Crockett, president; Mrs. Chas. H. Wilson, vice president; A. W. Brown, secretary; W. M. Meyers, treasurer, with H. V. Thompson, L. L. Smith, G. A. Grismer, A. A. Shuler and L. T. Dunbar, together with the officers, as an executive committee.

The board of education already owns a lot in the section, located on Scott road, and it is the plan of the association to request them to build at once.

It is figured that there are upwards of 200 children of school age who would be accommodated by such a building, and practically everybody in that district has signed a petition asking the board to construct the building at once. This petition, backed up by the personal presence of as large a delegation as can be gathered together will storm the citadel of the school board at their meeting tonight.

LA CRESCENTA

LECTURER TELLS OLD WORLD TRIP

Historic Spots Are Shown In Community Church by Noted Traveler

A splendid lecture was given at the La Crescenta Community church on Friday night. This lecture, which was beautifully illustrated with about 100 slides, was given by John Henry Hoffman who has traveled the Seven Seas over and covered 16,000 miles in land and sea voyages.

The audience was taken to such points of interest in Italy as the Catacombs, and while the pictures were being shown the tragic story of the early Christians who made the catacombs their refuge, was told. Old Pompeii as it is today, under the scientific hand of the excavator, was shown, being recovered from the grave of lava in which she is buried.

Rome received a call where the Coliseum was the place of interest. Traveling into Egypt the audience viewed the Pyramids, being taken into the interior to be shown a king's burial chamber. The Sphinx, that enigma of the ages, was presented, nor did she share her century-old secrets with the travelers, while the tomb of Rameses II proved very interesting. Children in native costumes of the nations of the world were shown, stories being told relative to them by the ex-minister traveler. A silver offering was taken, but no admission charged. Rev. Hoffman will present another series in about two weeks' time.

On Wednesday afternoon the women of the dramatic section of the Woman's club will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. Jessie Hansen on Piedmont avenue, to read over prospective plays for presentation.

Press Club Dinner

Mrs. E. L. Wemple and Mary B. Darrow attended the annual banquet of the Southern California Woman's Press club, held in the rose ball room of the Alexandria hotel. The visitors had the pleasure of hearing such prominent speakers as Frederick Warde, Christobel Pankhurst, Alma Whitaker, Katherine Von Blohn, Chief Vollmer, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Gene Stratton Porter, Elinor Glynn and others. This was the thirtieth anniversary of the organization.

Miss Annie Carson and John Carson will leave for their home in Readfield, Me., on Tuesday. The easterners have been out here all winter and express themselves delighted with the country and hope to be able to return next fall.

The Roscenta Chorus held at Montrose schoolhouse was a most enjoyable affair to those who attended. Mrs. R. T. MacDonald accompanied as usual in her thorough manner, Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. Imogene Kemp Smith sang as a duet the new chorus song, "Roscenta." This song is to be presented on Sunday next at the Hollywood Bowl when music week will be opened with appropriate ceremony. This Thursday the Community Sing will be held at Montrose school. Tonight is the first rehearsal of the chorus work Mr. Prosper is to give those who will be in the concert he is arranging.

The Improvement Association gave the regular monthly dance on Saturday night at the La Crescenta schoolhouse.

Adolph Busch, well-known chicken rancher of Los Angeles avenue, has removed a portion of his chicken houses and is building modern bungalows for rent. Mr. Cox has charge of the construction work.

The La Crescenta Mutual Water company is laying its large pipes in the streets thereby causing some inconvenience to housekeepers by reason of muddy, rusty water being served. However, the larger pipes are needed as the town is growing so, the old small pipe cannot carry force enough, though the present pressure is somewhat too heavy for the faucets, causing the meters to race. It is hoped this will be overcome with the larger pipes in use.

A number of local women attended the Parent-Teacher Association convention, those who were present being Mesdames W. Van Dusen, J. Hansen, C. W. Angier, C. Reinhard, A. V. Adkins, A. C. Craig, O. C. Miller, S. B. Young and Glenn Myers.

Couple Re-Wed After 25 Years' Separation

BALTIMORE, April 28.—Divorced a quarter of a century ago, Harry Weatherman and Mrs. Emma A. Weatherman were wedded again. During twenty-six years, Mrs. Weatherman had remained single. Her former husband married, his second wife dying. Mrs. Weatherman is now the step-mother of her husband's 4-year-old child.

Two-Day Banquet to Celebrate Freedom

NEW YORK, April 28.—Vincent and Salvatore Castaldo and Charles Corbisteri, acquitted of first degree murder, have announced that, in celebration of the acquittal, they were selling tickets for a two-day banquet. It will begin at 6 p. m. May 5 and continue until midnight of May 6.

VALLEY NEWS

PINEAPPLES MAY BE VALLEY CROP

Experiment with Fruit Leads to Belief Success May Crown Efforts

A project to grow pineapples in the San Fernando valley is the serious undertaking of W. G. Loomis of the Kadota fig farms near Chatsworth. Indeed, Mr. Loomis already has the succulent bromeliaceous (correct) plant under cultivation on his property and declares that in time he will be able to produce pineapples as delectable as any that ever tickled the epicurean palate.

"Heretofore the Orient has had a corner on many luscious fruits," says Mr. Loomis, "but now a host of tropical edibles such as dates, figs, pomegranates and other fruits as old as civilization itself are raised in our own Southland; and the San Fernando valley, being largely frostless, is well suited to many of these fruits, among them the pineapple.

"My investigations of the soil and climatic conditions in that part of the San Fernando valley adjoining Chatsworth led me to believe that pineapples could be raised here profitably.

"Absence of frost is essential to the successful growing of this fruit, and at Chatsworth we are blessed with this condition.

"We are located close to the foothills and the air currents keep down any frost that may threaten other sections of the valley.

"The method employed in growing pineapples at the Kadota fig farms is the same as now generally used in Hawaii. I fully expect to see the day when pineapples grown in the San Fernando valley will meet the market competition of those grown elsewhere."

Wondrous Freesias

Visitors to the San Fernando valley this spring have been amazed at the beauty and abundance of the freesias grown by Alois Frey, "the floral Burbank," at his estate on Woodley avenue and Chatsworth drive, near San Fernando.

Since coming here from Chicago about four years ago, Mr. Frey has made his mark as the producer and creator of unusual flowers, chief among which are rainbow-hued freesias. Here he found ideal conditions and gradually, in the crucible of his patience and genius, he has transmuted what originally was pure white blooms into flowers that rival rainbow hues.

Some idea of the infinite patience required to create this transformation may be gained when it is known that ten years' time is required from the time Mr. Frey starts to propagate a variety of freesia till the quantity is sufficient for him to put it on the market.

So great has been the stream of visitors seeking Mr. Frey's freesia garden, that before next season he will petition the Automobile Club of Southern California to put up signs guiding the way to his gardens.

Powder Puff Battle Ends in Girls' Favor

PLYMOUTH, Mass., April 28.—A girl's right to arm herself with as many powder puffs as she likes has just been sustained by the principal of the local high school. "Let them turn themselves into walking marshmallows if they want," ruled the principal, despite protests from teachers.

The powder puff war has been going on since a teacher several weeks ago decided the girls were spilling too much powder on the floor and removed the mirror from their dressing room. Indignant, every girl in school signed a petition demanding the return of the mirror. The principal ordered the mirror restored.

Woman Hung Child Up By Thumbs, Is Charge

BOSTON, April 28.—Because Willie Mehegan, aged 4, threw papers out of the window, he was hung up by the thumbs and beaten until his body was black and blue. Willie is now in a hospital fighting for his life, while police and the boy's father are gathering evidence by which they hope to send to jail Mrs. Ruby R. Williams, the woman accused. In court Mrs. Williams, in whose home the child has been boarding for several weeks, was held in $2000 bail on a charge of assault and battery.

In 1919 there were seven motorcycles in Cyprus, today there are nearly 70.

Values, Service and Convenience, Incentives To Trade In Glendale

Glendale citizens are displaying the progressive spirit more and more every day. In no way is this shown more truly or fraught with more telling results than in the tendency to buy in Glendale whenever possible. Glendale merchants, on the other hand, are making it possible to buy nearly everything in Glendale and to shop as advantageously and more conveniently than in the larger city department stores.

Glendale is famed for her marvelous location and wonderful scenery. Nature has been lavish in the gifts she has bestowed upon us. The importance of these natural advantages cannot be overestimated, and yet Glendale had them all years before the city became renowned as a city of homes and the fastest growing city in the United States.

Glendale people know that an up-to-date retail district is essential to a growing city, a city that is constantly bidding for new residents and one which aspires to be known as a city of homes. Homes must be served and the class of citizens Glendale seeks to attract will not establish homes in a locality where retail merchandise and service are not brought to their highest standard and efficiency.

Retail business must have local support to progress and build up business centers that will be attractive and give the highest service. Glendale people have needed little encouragement to trade in the home stores. The convenience of shopping in Glendale, obviating the tiresome trip on crowded street cars and the difficulty of finding a place to park in the shopping district of the larger city, has been an incentive to trade in Glendale.

Community loyalty has impelled many to patronize the local merchants, professions and trades, and their loyalty has redounded to their own advantage in values, service and convenience. More than this, their patronage of local business has helped to build it up and make it one of the greatest factors in increasing realty values.

THRONGS ATTEND OPENING OF NEW DRY GOODS FIRM

J. F. Wilde Launches Business On East Broadway Amid Congratulations

Continuous throngs that crowded the Wilde Dry Goods company's new store at 625 East Broadway from noon until after 9 o'clock at night on Saturday, April 26, was the opening day tribute paid to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wilde, proprietors, by the residents of East Glendale in particular, and Glendale, Eagle Rock, Montrose and surrounding territory in general.

It was indeed an auspicious beginning, and portends a fine volume of business, Mr. Wilde feels. That the section appreciates having a modern dry goods store in its midst was evinced by the many baskets of flowers received, among them the following donors being represented:

Ingledue Realty company, Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, Marshall Field & Company of Chicago (by telegram), Grether & Grether, Inc.; Miss Dorothy S. Wilde, French Electric Cleaners and Dyers, Glendale Ice Cream company, Miss Ada Carr, Milton G. Cooper Dry Goods company, Glendale Advancement association, Walton N. Moore Dry Goods company, Glendale Market, C. F. Stuart, Harry MacBain and the Smith Electric company.

Pleased at Success

Mr. Wilde expressed himself as almost overwhelmed by the success of opening day at the Wilde Dry Goods company. Not only did the people look around. They bought. The cash registers were busy from 12 until 9 o'clock. The total of sales was surprisingly large.

To every woman and child who visited the store on opening day was given a beautiful rose. Each man received a cigar. The Wildes were proud indeed of their initial success, happy over the flowers from fellow merchants, and most delighted of all with the beautiful basket of American Beauty roses wired from Chicago by the Marshall Field company, with which Mr. Wilde was associated for the past seven years.

The Wilde Dry Goods company owns its own two-story brick building and the corner lot at East Broadway and Howard street. Mr. and Mrs. Wilde are Glendalians and live at 908 East California avenue. For the past twenty years, on and off, Mr. Wilde has made his home here. He has hundreds of friends and is confident East Glendale is to have a big future.

Faith in Glendale

"I believe in East Glendale," he says. "Anyone who has watched recent developments knows this section is rapidly coming into its own. The paving and electrifyng of Glendale avenue has helped, as has the locaton of the $1,000,000 Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital in this section, the $500,000 Glendale Union Broadway High school, and the new postoffice building now under construction on East Broadway, in addition to many other developments of recent months and scheduled for the immediate future.

"In establishing the Wilde Dry Goods company, it is our aim to give East Glendale what it deserves. While we built for the future, we are here to serve the present public of the section with new, up-to-date merchandise at attractive prices, making trips to the city unnecessary."

BURGLARS STAGE FIVE ROBBERIES

Police Probing Series of Week-End Thefts; Owners Check Up Losses

Five burglaries were reported to the police inside of two hours Saturday night. The first call came at 8:12 o'clock from Lester Jones, 919 Lexington drive, and was followed in rapid succession by reports from Mrs. Townsend, 145 North Jackson street; T. C. Jones, 1011 East California street; L. W. Babcock, 225 North Howard street, and G. B. Miles, 410 South Columbus avenue.

The burglars gained their entrance by cutting screen doors or "jimmying" windows. The value of articles taken does not appear to be very heavy at this time, although full reports are not in the hands of the detectives. The complete list will not be known until this afternoon.

In each case the house was thoroughly ransacked, indicating the thieves took plenty of time at their work. At the home of Lester Jones two watches and a revolver were taken. Mrs. Townsend reported the loss of $3 in silver.

Detective Sergeants Charles P. Blake and H. A. Stanford are working on the cases.

MUCH FLAXSEED

Scarcely more than 50 per cent of the flaxseed required for America is raised on her own soil. For years the American farmer has been deficient in this respect. He receives from $2.21 to $2.61 a bushel for his product, and the duty on the imported article is more than 40 cents a bushel, with prospect of an increase. This duty is represented in the increased cost of a gallon of linseed oil to the extent of about 12 cents.

Adds To Saddle Stock

MRS. JESSIE HALLETT, mounted on White Beauty, the "high-schooled" horse that has attracted hundreds of visitors to the Oakmont Saddle stables by its remarkable "education." This horse is said by J. R. Thorpe to be almost human, and one of the gentlest of living animals.

The Oakmont Saddle stables of Ocean View avenue and Waltonia drive, Montrose, have acquired all the horses and equipment from Homer Baldridge, who for the past seven years has conducted a saddle livery on his big ranch in the hills a mile west of Montrose, today announced J. R. Thorpe, proprietor.

From now on Mr. Baldridge will devote his entire time to the rock and gravel crusher operated on his property by a large Los Angeles contracting company, Mr. Thorpe states. In securing this fine string of horses he feels he has acquired some of the gentlest and best liked animals Glendale people have ever ridden.

Added to his existing string, this newest acquisition will give Mr. Thorpe a stable of horses whose superiority in this section cannot be questioned. Many of Mr. Baldridge's animals are already well known to Glendale riders.

The Oakmont Saddle stables are now in a position to offer members of the Oakmont Country club even more complete equestrian facilities, Mr. Thorpe states. In addition to the above horses, a number of fine mounts from San Diego county will soon be added, as a result of a recent trip south by the proprietor of the stables.

Through the cooperation of the Glendale Union High school faculty with Mr. Thorpe, arrangements have been made to furnish saddle horses to the students, who will ride practically every day, under the personal direction and tuition of J. J. Gethin, for several years proprietor of the Beverly Hills Saddle stables and riding academy.

PAUL'S ADVICE IS TOLD IN SERMON

Need for Higher Standards In Reading Revealed by Church Editor

Rev. W. H. Nelson, D. D., of San Francisco, editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate, delighted a large audience Sunday at the Broadway Methodist Church, South, with an interesting sermon on "Reading." Choosing for his text First Timothy 4:13—"'Til I come give attendance to reading," he said in part:

"This letter of Paul to Timothy represents the thought of an old man about to leave this world to a younger upon whose shoulders will rest his unfinished work and responsibility. His fatherly words are pathetically beautiful. He emphasizes the need for Timothy's acquisition of knowledge concerning the scriptures by stressing the necessity for his attendance to reading.

Wesley's Example

"John Wesley, that intellectual giant, recognized the press as the most powerful factor in influencing men's lives, and at his own expense distributed quantities of literature. The press today is still recognized as the most powerful medium in the distribution of propaganda—good or bad. Through the press the thoughts of the greatest men, and of the greatest nations, are distributed to the individuals of the world. It was the press, used in scattering all over Germany and printed in her native tongue the fourteen points of President Wilson, that proved to be one of the very greatest factors in winning the war, and bringing peace to a tired world.

"We can readily realize, that having such a powerful influence, the press should be elevated to the highest standard, and the reading matter coming into our homes should be most carefully selected.

A good book or paper is a blessing to humanity, while a vile or bad one is a menace. Every man should keep posted on the doctrines of his church, and no Christian should remain in ignorance of the teachings and doings of his church; hence he should by all means read every copy of his church-paper.

Elevate Nation

"To better educate the people means to elevate them as individuals, and hence to elevate the entire nation, as an educated mind, when properly directed, is of far greater value to a community than the ignorant mind. While God, to carry out His divi plan, does not need your learning He much less needs your ignorance.

The press has for centuries brought messages of hope to the hopeless.

Special music was a feature at both services.

An Englishman financier had a special Bank of England note printed, for the sum of 1,000,000 pounds or nearly $5,000,000.

FIGURES IN TWO SUNDAY CRASHES

William J. Black Reports Pair of Accidents In One Day to Police

Yesterday must have been an unlucky day for William J. Black, 1246 Thompson avenue, who, according to accident reports filed at police headquarters, figured in two automobile crashes, one in the morning and the second at night.

His first report states that while going north on San Fernando road in front of the ranch market, a car driven by Earl Horn, of Burbank, collided with his car while Horn was trying to avoid a collision with another machine. His son, W. J. Black, Jr., and Horn, were slightly injured. They were taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital and later went home.

In the evening at 9:30 o'clock he collided with a machine driven by Charles W. Thompson, 618 Glenwood road, in front of the latter's residence. Mildred Thompson was slightly hurt in the crash.

Little Girl Hurt

Emma Sutton, the 3-year-old daughter of W. A. Sutton, 2710½ West Avenue 34, Los Angeles, received a cut on the head when the car her father was driving, collided with a machine driven by Mrs. W. J. Daze, 817 South Oxford avenue, Los Angeles.

The accident occurred shortly before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Colorado and Pacific. The little girl was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital where her injuries received attention.

M'GROARTY URGES UNITY IN STATE

'Forget Line Dividing North from Southern Part,' Is Poet's Plea

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—John S. McGroarty, known as the modern Mission father, with the spirit of the old padres, is trying to make California forget the dividing line of the Tehachepi. His famous "Mission Play," now in its twelfth successful year, has just been sent on a pilgrimage to San Francisco, while "La Golondrina," McGroarty's latest drama, is playing at the San Gabriel play house.

Addressing a local audience recently, McGroarty said: "California has a heritage unlike any other state, in beauty, romance and self-sacrifice. It is ridiculous for a section whose history and whose interests are so unified as this state's, to stigmatize itself with the geographical alignments of North and South.

"Every true Californian should be proud that in the eyes of the world California is The West, and should forget petty longitudinal dividing lines."

DIES AS HUSBAND SCORES TRIUMPH

Mrs. Frank Keenan Stricken While Watching Film At Writers' Club

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—Grim, real life tragedy as dramatic as anything ever conceived by a playwright marked the death last night of Mrs. Frank Keenan at the theater of the Writers' club in Hollywood, while her noted actor husband was scoring a tremendous success in the premier presentation of a comedy with the motif of "What's the Use of Glory If the One You Love Is Gone."

Mrs. Keenan was stricken while in the audience at the moment when her husband, in his stage role, pointed to a painting of his dead wife and bitterly lamented that she was not with him to share fame that had come after years of hardship.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced. Mr. and Mrs. Keenan were married in Boston forty years ago. She was not a professional. Mrs. Keenan, who was 56 years old at the time of her death, is survived by two daughters, one of whom is the wife of Ed Wynn, famous comedian, and the other of Major Sloan of the United States army.

Slayer Pays Murder Penalty on Scaffold

CANON CITY, Colo., April 26.—Joe McGonigal, double slayer, was hanged in the state penitentiary at 5:05 o'clock this morning.

McGonigal was convicted of the killing in Aguilar, Colo., on June 1, 1922, of Wilbur Ferguson, a young college student, and Miss Ella Centers. Jealousy of Ferguson's attentions to the girl was believed the motive for the crime.

Out of 35,000 electrical patents granted in England in one year, 297 were those of women.

Taxi Driver Robbed Of Money and Auto

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—John Dennis, a taxicab driver, had the ill-luck to be approached by a man who wanted to be driven to Santa Fe Springs to pick up two friends who were broke. Dennis agreed to make the trip for $7.50 and lost his taxi and $21, when the three men held him up on the Downey road where they had asked to be driven.

Dennis was gagged and bound, but managed to attract the attention of A. R. Tinnen, a gasoline plant employe who turned him loose. Deputies called to the scene of the theft searched, but to no avail.

Bakersfield Shows Gain in Population

BAKERSFIELD, April 28.—Population increase here is noted in the new city directory, just issued, which gives Bakersfield a rating of 25,000, exclusive of Orientals.

Honolulu Track Men Visit at San Pedro

SAN PEDRO, April 28.—Among the 700 troops brought from Honolulu on the transport Somme were thirty-six Hawaiians, sixteen boxers and twenty track men, on their way to the Olympic games. The odd thing is that the sporting blood died in two of them and when the transport continued on its voyage east two of the Hawaiians were found to be missing.

Mullen Convicted On Second Trial

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Guilty of first degree robbery was the verdict of a jury in Superior Judge Hardy's court after hearing the retrial of J. L. Mullen, alleged Long Beach "match bandit." Halbert Logue, already convicted, testified for Mullen, stating he was not aware what the car he was driving was being used for.

TIMBER IS SWEPT BY FOREST FIRES

Winds Fan Blaze In Wooded Tracts of Northwest; Buildings Razed

PORTLAND, Ore., April 26.—Continuing dry winds today fanned forest fires which are sweeping through timber areas in many places in Oregon and Washington.

Fire is raging along a twenty-mile front from Vancouver, Washington, northeast to Yacolt. Another home was destroyed today, bringing the total to five residences and a fruit cannery at Orchards, near Vancouver. Residents of Sifton, a mile and a half from Orchards, are preparing to leave with their belongings if the fire continues to sweep through the district.

8 Years Ago!

Rays of hope were beginning to break through the clouds of doubt that hovered over George Pepperdine and his good wife, when they opened the first Pacific Coast store of the Western Auto Supply Company, on Twelfth and Main Streets, Los Angeles.

Bravely they fought for a livelihood—a fight made more desperate because of their humble beginning in Kansas City, Missouri, in 1909, with a meagre capital of $5.00—a fight now considered more heroic because of the failing health of George Pepperdine and the adversities he had to contend with.

To-day -

the history of the business, its slow, steady climb at first and then the meteoric rise to One Hundred Stores in the West, can be reviewed with pardonable pride and satisfaction by Mr. Pepperdine, President and General Manager, and Mrs. Pepperdine, Vice-President and Treasurer, of the Western Auto Supply Company.

Many of the six hundred men and women now employed by the "Western Auto" started years ago when the company was in its infancy. They helped weather the storms. They learned the value of satisfied customers. Now they hold responsible positions and give the newer members of this great family of co-workers the benefit of their experience.

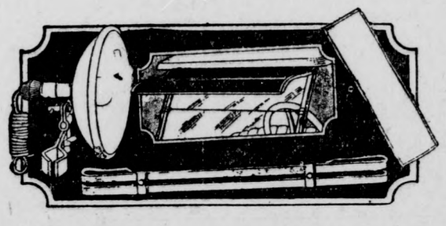
The employees have a greater interest in the company than just their pay checks. Most of the six hundred own stock and share in the profits.

Many motorists have also seen the splendid possibilities which the Western Auto Supply Company offers. Over three thousand stockholders have received annual dividends, ranging from 12 to 14% a year.

All of this, which led up to the opening of One Hundred Stores in so short a time, could not have been made possible without your confidence and faith in our unfaltering fidelity to our policy of absolute honesty and satisfaction and your loyal support. We are not unmindful of the debt of gratitude we owe you. We appreciate and value your good-will above everything, and we shall always strive to preserve the kindly and friendly attitude which now exists between us.

On April 30th

we invite you to join in our "100 Store" Celebration. Our store in your city will remain open from 7:00 to 9:00 p. m. There will be music, refreshments and public speaking. Sixteen Accessory prizes, valued at $55.00, will be given away.



These prizes will be given away free—16 in all. 10 Special Cop-Spotter Mirrors, 3 Spotlights, 2 Curved Metal Visors, 1 Bumper—a combined value of $55.

Beginning with May 1st, and continuing throughout the entire month, we hope to further express our appreciation by holding a Special Saving Sale. Hundreds of articles will be offered at additional savings. Camping Equipment will be included. During this month, the Western Auto Supply Company will share its profits with those who have made possible these One Hundred Stores.

Come to the Celebration and the Special Saving Sale. Watch your newspapers for further announcements.

Diet and Health

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

There is an alarming epidemic in California of foot and mouth disease, a very serious disease affecting cattle. As this disease causes great economic losses and great disturbance in affected areas, and as the news will undoubtedly be printed in all of the newspapers of the United States, I believe there will be sufficient interest to warrant an article on the subject.

What is the foot and mouth disease? I will give you the definition as given in Rosenau's Preventive Medicine and Hygiene; the other data I give you will also be from Rosenau, as I have never seen the disease myself and know nothing of it personally:

1. Definition. — "Foot and mouth disease is also known as aphthous fever, epizootic catarrh, and eczema contagiosa. It is an acute and highly communicable disease, generally confined to cloven footed animals and characterized by an eruption of vesicles (blisters) on the mucous membrane of the mouth and on the skin between the toes and above the hoofs; seldom on the udder or other parts of the body. The vesicles rupture, leaving superficial erosions which sometimes develop into ulcers. Other symptoms are: salivation, tenderness of the affected parts, loss of appetite, lameness, emaciation and dimunition in the quantity of milk secreted."

2. What Animals are Affected? "Foot and mouth disease is primarily a disease of cattle and secondarily of man. It also affects hogs, sheep, goats . . . and even dogs and cats are said to occasionally become infected. Horses and fowls are not susceptible."

3. What Is the Cause of the Disease? "It is caused by what we know as an ultra-microscopic germ; that is, we have no miscroscope powerful enough to disclose them at present. The specific principle is found in the serum of the vesicles, in the saliva, milk and various other secretions and execretions, also in the blood."

4. How Are the Animals Affected? "Animals may be directly infected, as by licking, and in calves by sucking, or indirectly by infected manure, hay, utensils, drinking troughs, railway cars, animal markets, barnyards and pastures, or persons who come in contact with diseased animals."

5. How Is the Infection Transmitted to Man? "The infection is transmitted to man usually through the ingestion of raw milk, buttermilk, cheese or whey from diseased cows. Persons in charge of diseased animals may become infected through contact with the affected parts, or by milking, slaughtering, or caring for animals."

6. How Is the Disease Manifest in Man? "In man the disease is mild; the symptoms resemble those observed in animals; there is fever, sometimes vomiting, painful swallowing, heat and dryness of the mouth, followed by an eruption of vesicles in the buccal and mucous membranes, and very rarely by similar ones on the fingers. The vesicles are about the size of a pea; they soon break, leaving small erosions, which rapidly heal. The disease is seldom fatal, except occasionally in very weak children."

7. How Are the Epidemics Controlled? "Every outbreak on American soil (this makes the seventh) has thus far been followed by its complete suppression through the application of well-known preventive measures, such as isolation, destruction and burial of the affected herds, disinfection, restriction of the movements of the cattle, and a systematic inspection of all farms in the affected area to detect cases of the disease."

As every known measure is being used by the California authorities and as all the people of California are undoubtedly co-operating in every respect, there is no doubt that the epidemic there will be soon under control.

I say that "all" of the people are co-operating; I'm afarid I will have to modify that, as there are a great many people in California who have been taught through false health information to believe that germs are not the cause but the effect of infectious disease. This is a half truth, and as you know, half truths are sometimes more pernicious than whole falsehoods. These people may not be co-operating and are probably doing a good deal of shouting about the "political doctors" and "medical trusts," and so on. We hope, however, most of them will be made to realize through this terrible epidemic that they have been following false prophets.

Says She Killed Man

MRS. JOHANNA TELL told New York police she killed CHARLES BLAHA (insert) with a hatchet and buried his body on a farm. Police doubted her story but made a search and found the body. Her plea is self-defense.

Her mind is easy now. Her face is bright. She is able to sleep. The terrible secret so preyed upon her that Mrs. Johanna Tell voluntarily appeared before New York police and told the startling story of how she shot and hacked with a hatchet her employer, Charles Blaha, to death, and then buried his body. She was not believed until police dug up the body of Blaha on his small farm. Self defense is her plea. Mrs. Tell and her daughter, 14, lived with Blaha, for whom she was housekeeper.

HAIR POWDERS

One of the most annoying things to attempt at home is a dry shampoo. There are only a few lotions on the market for this purpose, and most of them contain a very high percentage of alcohol so that they dry the scalp too much and even in time turn the hair gray. Shampoo powders make the hair fluffy and are quite harmless, but they also make it very dusty looking. Yet there are times when the hair needs a shampoo, when soap and water cannot be used.

Here are suggestions: If you can purchase shampoo powder colored the shade of your hair, do so, as this will be less likely to give your hair that ugly dusty look. These are very hard to find, and the only suggestion I can give you for making such a powder is to melt lumps of laundry starch in very strong cold coffee, and when it settles to pour off as much liquid as possible and let the starch dry. When dry it can easily be crushed into powder again and used. It will be a light brown from the coffee and should not be as conspicuous as white powder. It should be sprinkled liberally through the hair, shaken out and brushed out, and then (this is most important) a big piece of absorbent cotton should be put over the brush and the hair polished. The cotton takes off dirt, grease and powder, and leaves the hair glossy.

An easier way is to purchase coarsely ground corn meal. You can shake out a remarkable amount of fine dust from this by putting the meal in a cheesecloth bag. Use the coarse part, rub thoroughly through the hair, shake and brush out and polish as suggested before.

As I said, lotions for a waterless shampoo must contain alcohol or ether, since they must not only dry quickly but must also absorb grease. Don't use them if you have a tendency toward gray hair.

Dumpy—As you are 50 pounds overweight and only 23 years of age, it is advisable for you to be under the care of a doctor while reducing to normal. The only healthful way to do this is through the diet. Take about one year to effect this change, arranging the diet so you will not lose more than five pounds each month.

Pats—There is no reason why

Dry Shampoos Are Useful

you should not bob your hair at 17, and I should think you would find plenty of other girls in your junior section of the high school who do not think they are too old for wearing their hair in this convenient and becoming style.

Wear your dresses at length becoming your height.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

HE'S "INSANELY JEALOUS"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman 22 and have a boy and a girl. I have a good husband, except that he is insanely jealous. I have always been true. I do my own housework—washing, baking, sewing, and take care of my children.

I must admit that on one occasion I made him jealous only in a joking way and it led him to believe I no longer loved him and loved some one else. He has told me that if I love some one else better than I do him he will let me go. He has accused me of being false and says he cannot trust me, and yet I am innocent of any wrong doing. I have never gone with another man.

If he accuses me again, should I leave him and take the children with me? Or do you think I should stand for that since I made him jealous once? I am always at home, never going out much. If I show I want to go more he says I am not satisfied and want to run wild. That is not the idea at all as I am a quiet sort of person. I am considered very good-looking among friends and he has heard that remark from several of his friends also.

Please tell me what I should do and what causes a man to be so unreasonably jealous of his wife?

BOBBIE.

Since you have a good husband and your only complaint is his jealousy, you would be very foolish to leave him. Of course it is most unpleasant to be accused of faithlessness and suspected every time you go out of the house, but since you deliberately aroused his jealousy at one time you will have to take the consequences now. Possibly the fact that you are good-looking and his friends make remarks about it, only intensifies his feeling of uneasiness about you. Do not stay at home all the time, because it will do you good to get away and have a change. I would not advise you to ask permission to go, but you might be able to relieve your husband of a lot of unnecessary worry if you only explained what you were going to do. Never refer to his jealousy unless he brings up the subject, and then argue as little as possible. Perhaps if you took more pains to show your husband that you love him he would feel more confident of your love. Jealousy is a failing which belongs to people who let their feelings run riot and who refuse to overcome their fears with fair judgment and reason. Jealousy can be overcome to a great extent if the person suffering from it takes the trouble to consider the matter in the light of reason.

A. B. C.—It depends upon the kind of entertainment you have gone to and the circumstances whether or not you should let a boy friend take you home. Of course he should always be a friend and not a stranger. Often several girls go to school parties together and boys who have gone alone take them home. I would not advise you to let the same boy take you over and over again. If he enjoys your company so much he ought to invite you to go to the entertainment and call for you. When a boy asks to take you home and you are going to let him, thank him and say he may. If you don't want him to, tell him you have attended with some girls and you believe it will be better to return with them. A caller should leave between ten and ten: thirty. If a boy has taken you home from an entertainment and goes into the house, he should only stay ten or fifteen minutes if the hour is later than 10:30. In case he does not show signs of going, tell him that you are not allowed to have company so late and you think it will be better if he comes some other time when it is earlier.

From Book Of Life

NOVELTY

Joseph Addison Englishman, had an idea that critics of art seek its principles in the wrong place, so long as they limit their search to poems, pictures, engravings, statues and buildings, instead of first arranging the sentiments and faculties in man to which art makes its appeal.

This is the same idea underlying the somewhat lengthy "Philosophical Inquiry Into the Origin of Our Idea of the Sublime and Beautiful" of Edmund Burke, published in 1757 on the basis of the most scientific psychology that was then within his reach.

The first section of the first part of Burke's inquiry is headed "Novelty." He says:

"The first and simplest emotion which we discover in the human mind is Curiosity. By curiosity, I mean whatever desire we have for, or whatever pleasure we take in, novelty.

"We see children perpetually running from place to place, to hunt something new; they catch with great eagerness, and with very little choice, at whatever comes before them; their attention is engaged by everything, because everything has, in that stage of life, the charm of novelty to recommend it.

But, as those things which engage us merely by their novelty cannot attract us for any lenght of time, curiosity is the most superficial of all affections; it changes its object perpetually; it has an appetite which is very sharp, but very easily satisfied; and it has always an appearance of giddiness, restlesness and anxiety.

"Curiosity, from its nature, is a very active principle; it quickly runs over the greatest part of its objects, and soon exhausts the variety which is commonly to be met with in nature; the same things make frequent returns, and they return with less and less of any agreeable effect.

"In short, the occurrences of life, by the time we come to know them a little, would be incapable of affecting the mind with any other sensations than those of loathing and weariness if many things were not adapted to affect the mind by means of other powers besides novelty in them, and of other passions besides curiosity in ourselves.

"But, whatever these powers are, or upon what principle soever they affect the mind, it is absolutely necessary that they should not be exerted in those things which a daily and vulgar use have brought into a state affecting familiarity. Some degree of novelty must be one of the materials in every instrument which works upon the mind; and curiosity blends itself more or less with all our passions."

This leads Burke up to a discourse on pain and pleasure.

Perhaps you consider pleasure and pain mere relations, which can only exist as they are contracted. Burke thought differently. It was his theory that these two extreme states of feeling were each of positive nature, and by no means necessarily dependent on each other for their existence.

"There is nothing which I can distinguish in my mind with more clearness than the three states, of indifference, of pleasure, and of pain," he argues. "Every one of these I can perceive without any sort of idea of its relation to anything else. Caius is afflicted with a fit of the colic; this man is actually in pain; stretch Caius upon the rack, he will feel a much greater pain; but does this pain of the rack arise from the removal of any pleasure? or is the fit of colic a pleasure or a pain, just as we are pleased to consider it?"

We shall have more to say of Burke's inquiry later.

JUST HIS IDEA

A woman who had visited every department of one of the big London shops and worried the majority of the salesmen without spending a penny, so exasperated one of them that he ventured to make a mild protest. "Madam," he asked, "are you shopping here?"

The woman looked surprised, but not by any means annoyed. Certainly," she replied. "What else should I be doing?"

For a moment the salesman hesitated: then he blurted out, "Well, madam, I thought perhaps you were taking an inventory."

Southern Spoon Bread: Heat one pint of sweet milk almost to boiling point, then gradually stir in one-half cup of cornmeal and let cook till the consistency of mush. Now remove from fire and add one-half teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt and the beaten yolks of three eggs, then fold in three stiffly-whipped egg-whites and turn the mixture into a greased baking dish (such as a pudding dish). Bake for one-half hour in a slow oven and serve in same dish, using a spoon to take it from the dish. Plenty of butter should be used with this bread.

Potato-Turnip Dish: "Put several slices of fat salt pork into cold water and let it come to a boil, then remove from water, roll in flour, and fry till brown. Now slice turnips into the water in which the pork was boiled and add one-half the amount of fat made by the frying of the pork. Let the turnips cook till almost tender, then slice in as many potatoes as you have turnips. Add more water if necessary. Serve when the potatoes are tender." (Contributed).

Date Dessert: "Heat one quart of sweet milk in a double boiler and add one tablespoon of butter. When the milk is hot, thicken it by adding four tablespoons of cornstarch powder mixed to a paste with a little cold milk; let the mixture cook eight minutes, stirring constantly, then add one cup of chopped stoned dates, one-fourth teaspoon of almond extract and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. Turn all into sherbet glasses and cool. This recipe serves eight. Contributed by "A Friend."

Cracker Crumb Cake: Beat together four egg-yolks and one cup of sugar; add the unbeaten whites of four eggs, one teaspoon of baking powder mixed with one cup of cracker crumbs, then stir in one cup each of chopped raisins and chopped pecan nuts. Bake in a greased cup-cake pan for about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

"Uncooked Strawberry Pie (Contributed by Mrs. M.): Only the crust is used. Fill the bottom of a pie pan with pastry and bake it, then fill this baked crust with fresh, ripe berries and cover the berries with a boiled icing such as you would make for cake (sugar, water and egg-white—a regular boiled icing). This pie requires no sugar except what is in the icing. Put in a cold place to chill before serving."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PERFUME

"Uncle Wiggily, will you please get me a spool of thread?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one day.

"Right gladly I shall do that little thing for you," spoke the bunny rabbit gentleman, sort of fanciful like. With that he handed Nurse Jane her work basket, which had in it spools of thread, needles, pins and a pair of sharp scissors.

"Oh, not that thread!" laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "If I had wanted a spool from my basket I could have reached it myself, though I thank you just the same. I mean will you go to the eleven and twelve cent store and buy me a spool of sky blue pink buttonhole twist to sew a pocket in my new dress."

"Right gladly will I do that for you!" said Uncle Wiggily, with a jolly little pinkle of his twink nose—oh, excuse me—that's twisted, isn't it, just like some doughnuts. I mean his nose twinkled.

So, taking his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, which Nurse Jane had gnawed for hi mout of a cornstalk, Uncle Wiggily hopped off to the eight and nine-cent store.

"I suppose I'll get all mixed up at the glove counter and the aisle where they sell stockings and ribbons," thought the bunny rabbit gentleman as he stood for a moment outside the place. "But no matter! I promised Nurse Jane I'l get her the sky blue pink silk to make a buttonhole and I'll do it!"

So Uncle Wiggily hopped inside the thirteen and fourteen cent store and seeing behind the counter a little mousie girl, the rabbit gentleman asked her:

"Where may I find sky blue pink buttonhole twist for sewing pockets on a dress?"

"Third aisle over, one turn to the right, two turns to the left, up one flight of stairs, down two flights and then take the elevator to the roof," said the little mousie girl. "But wait a moment, if you please."

With that she squeezed a rubber ball that was fast to a bottle and a most beautiful perfume filled the air. A cloud of it was wafted toward Uncle Wiggily.

"Ah!" breathed the bunny gentleman with a long sigh. And again he said, "Ah!"

"Something clever in perfume," murmured the little mousie girl. "It is new boiled cabbage. We're giving you a free spray today," and she spattered more on Uncle Wiggily.

"Ah, but that's lovely!" said the bunny. "I'll buy a bottle for Nurse Jane." Which he did; also, after much trouble and many twists here and there, finally getting the sky blue pink spool of thread.

With the bottle of perfume in one pocket and the spool of thread in the other, Uncle Wiggily hopped home to his hollow stump bungalow. But when he went in the muskrat lady housekeeper wasn't there.

Pinned to a bottle on the table, however, was a note. The note was written on white birch bark, and said:

"Dear Uncle Wiggily: Mrs. Twistytail just came in to bring back this bottle she borrowed last week and she and I have gone to the movies. I couldn't wait for you to return."

The note was signed with Nurse Jane's name.

"Hum!" murmured Uncle Wiggily. "I suppose I was a little long at the perfume counter, but no matter. Nurse Jane will be glad when she gets home and smells this lovely scent. I must take another sniff myself."

So Uncle Wiggily took a smell from the bottle of perfume, and, liking it very much, he smelled it again. Then he put it on the table next to the bottle which Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig, had brought back.

"Ah, that's good!" sighed the bunny. Then, as if an echo had said it, a voice growled:

"And so are you good! You are so good and I am so hungry that I am going to take you off to my den." With that—in walked the Black, Bushy Bear.

Uncle Wiggily had just stretched forth his paw to take another smell of the perfume when the bear entered.

"What's that—in the bottle?" growled the bear.

"Sweet new boiled cabbage perfume," answered the bunny.

"Hum! I'll take a smell and then I'll take you away with me!" growled the Bear. He picked up the bottle, snapped out the cork and took a long, strong sniff.

"Ah!" breathed the bunny gentleman

Then he gave a howl—oh, such a howl!

"Oh, my neck! My neck! Oh, my nose!" howled the Bear, and out of the door he ran.

"My! I guess he didn't like my perfume," said Uncle Wiggily. But when he looked he saw the Bear had picked up the bottle left by the lady pig. And that bottle had in it strong ammonia that is used in washing clothes. And a smell from that makes you feel as if someone had hit you.

"Ha! Ha! No wonder the Bear was fooled!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. Then he picked up the ammonia bottle, which the Bear had dropped, and the rabbit took care not to smell it. He corked it and took another sniff of the lovely perfume and when Nurse Jane came in he gave it to her. She liked it very much. But the Bear had a headache for a week.

And if the umbrella doesn't stay so late at the moving pictures that it doesn't come home in time to get breakfast for the goldfish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's telephone.

From Evening News Files

The poles for the extension of the electric railroad, which will run over the present Pacific Electric tracks from Los Angeles to Broadway and east on Broadway to Everett street, are all up and before long the residents in that section of town will be afforded the pleasure of going back and forth Glendale and Los Angeles in comfort.

A brief act of addition this morning made known to the editor of The Glendale Evening News that the weekly payroll of the News is $199.50.

It is pleasing news to every citizen of Glendale to learn that the Pacific Electric company has commenced lowering their tracks on Brand boulevard between Second and Sixth streets.

Catalyst is a new compound that acts as a fertilizer and is also the base for a powerful explosive.

After Sprint Record

MISS FRANCES RUPPERT came within one second of equaling the world's record set by LOREN MURCHISON for the 40-yard dash, and is now training in an effort to surpass her masculine rival for track honors.

Have our women athletes reached the point of proficiency where they are now ready to challenge the supremacy of the stronger sex in track and field events?

The recent feat of Miss Frances Ruppert, Meadowbrook club runner and one of the star girl athletes of the east, would indicate this.

Miss Ruppert has come within one second of the world's record for the 40-yard dash, held by Loren Murchison, fleet-footed westerner. She is now training religiously in the belief that she can cut down that difference and eventually equal, if not surpass, Murchison's mark.

Murchison is regarded as one of the greatest sprint men of the day—one of the best America has developed. He holds several records for various sprint events.

At Local Theatres

THE GLENDALE

"Scaramouche" continues at the Glendale theater, where yesterday it thrilled every spectator by the tremendous sweep and power of its story and the supreme triumph of its cast. It is a Rex Ingram production, from the famous Rafael Sabatini novel, with the principal parts taken by Ramon Navarro and Alice Terry.

The story is laid in the time of the French revolution and deals with the adventures of a young noble who takes the side of the people. Willis Goldbeck made the screen adaptation and the photography was by John F. Seitz.

Seven months were consumed in making "Scaramouche," while hundreds of persons, costumers, carpenters, assistant directors and cameramen worked night and day. The massive sets occupied many city blocks, and represents a mammoth fortune. The result has been a super-photoplay that holds audiences spellbound.

THE GATEWAY

"Flowing Gold," produced by Richard Walton Tully from Rex Beach's popular novel by that name, continues at the Gateway theater. In the cast of the lavish production are Anna Q. Nilsson, Milton Sills, Alice Calhoun and John Roche.

The story is replete in the dramatic, in romance, delicious comedy and thrills. The fight between Sills and Roche in the governor's suite of the hotel will rank as one of the best screen battles. The tremendous fire and storm sequence will bring gasps from the most hardened beholder. An entire oil field is destroyed by fire, while the valley below is a raging flood of water and blazing oil.

"Flowing Gold" is the phrase the author has coined for oil, by means of which thousands of persons have become millionaires. The scenes are laid in the oil country against a background of hundreds of derricks.

WARREN'S ADDRESS

Stand! the ground's your own, my braves!
Will ye give it up to slaves?
Will you look for greener graves?
Hope ye mercy still?
What's the mercy despots feel?
Hear it in that battle peal!
Read it on yon bristling steel!
Ask it—ye who will!

Fear ye foes who kill for hire?
Will ye to your homes retire?
Look behind you! they're afire!
And before you, see
You have done it! From the vale
On they come! and will ye quail?
Leaden rain and iron hail
Let their welcome be!

In the God of battles trust!
Die we may—and die we must;
But, O, where can dust to dust
Be consigned so well
As where heaven its dews shall shed
On the martyred patriot's bed,
And the rocks shall raise their head
Of his deeds to tell.

—John Pierpont.

PERFECTLY GOOD REASON

Tommy had sprained his wrist and didn't want to go to school. "But your wrist is nicely bandaged," urged his mother. "It won't prevent you from attending classes." Still the boy held back. Dad took a hand at this point.

"Now speak up, son," commanded his father. "Let's have the real reason. Why don't you want to go to school with a sprained wrist?"

"Too many boys owe me a licking."

Daily News Letter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad

By R. T. BULKELEY
For International News Service.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 26.—Sachem's Woods, one-time estate of James Hillhouse, Revolutionary soldier and statesman of the early United States, is rapidly being absorbed by new buildings of Yale university, and eventually the entire tract of about two square city blocks will be bounded by college structures, forming a new campus. The latest structure is now rising at Whitney avenue and Sachem street, to house Peabody museum, Yale's natural history collection.

While only a pair of units of this structure are under way now, they stretch a considerable distance on either side, and are about to be joined by a large hall of reptiles. Other units will join on either street, and the time is near when almost the entire Sachem street front of the tract will have buildings on it.

Osborn memorial laboratories, Sage Hall, the new forestry school building, the vast Sterling chemical laboratories, and the new Sloane physics laboratory are lined up side by side on the Prospect street frontage. Several acres of land remain vacant in the tract which bears the name of Pierson-Sage Square and is the gift of Mrs. Russell Sage, named in her honor and that of her ancestor. Yale's first president.

Sitting atop the hill, in the center of the square, is the Hillhouse home, still occupied by the last of that family, and to be used until he dies, when Yale takes that over also. Mrs. Sage provided that the unbuilt portions of the square shall be opened to the public of New Haven forever. The public's use, however, is restricted to sauntering in the paths of the square.

The new Peabody museum is to contain probably the greatest group of specimens of animal heads and skeletons in the United States, as the result of a gift by Thomas D. M. Cardesa of his own collection of game heads, which have just reached the museum. Cardesa, who has an international reputation as a naturalist and big game hunter, has sent 566 mounted heads and skulls, with horns, together with miscellaneous zoological specimens and an extensive series of implements used by native hunters.

The Cardesa collection was originally in its owner's hunting castle, in Hungary, but at the beginning of the war was brought to this country. Prof. Wesley R. Coe, curator of zoological collections at Yale, says: "Altogether this collection is the most notable of its kind ever brought to America and one which comes at a most opportune time in supplying the peculiar needs of the new museum. It will prove of great importance in future studies."

Cardesa's hunting career started in 1895, in the Maine woods, and after he was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1900, he spent much time hunting in the Rockies, going to Africa in 1903 for his first trip abroad. In those days game was plentiful in the Mt. Kenia district of Eastern Arfica. Since those days the British government has placed a limit on bags of jungle animals, just as in this country game birds and fish are limited to the sportsman. As a result of hunting when game was fairly plentiful, Cardesa has in the collection now being set up in New Haven a head of the greater kudu, taken on his third trip into Africa. Then the collection ranges from the tiny dik-dik up to a hippopotamus whose open mouth measures twenty-three inches between lips.

With the passing of the Hillhouse estate Yale may arrange some other memorial to the original owners. Two memorials are contained in Hillhouse avenue, rated one of the most beautiful streets in New England; and Sachem street, named more from the owner of Sachem's woods than from the estate name, for James Hillhouse, in appearance, resembled an Indian chief and was a civic leader of repute. It was through efforts of Hillhouse that New Haven eventually came to be known as "City of Elms," for he went about what then was a village of 7000, and with his own hands, planted almost as many elm trees as there were residents here. The trees flourished, some of them still standing, though weak with age, having passed the average life of a century granted an elm tree.

Dinner Stories

PRIZE WINNERS

Mickey and Patsy had been schoolmates together, but they had drifted apart in after life. They met one day, and the conversation turned on athletics.

"Did you ivir meet my brother Dennis?" asked Pat. "He has just won a gold medal in a foot race."

"Bedad," replied Mike. "Sure, an' thot's foine. But did I ivir tell ye about my uncle at Ballycluna?"

"I don't remember," replied Pat.

"Well," said Mike, "he's got a gold medal for five miles, an' one for ten miles, two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, an' badges for boxing and rowing!"

"Begorra," said Pat, "he must have bin a wonderful athlete, indade."

"Shure, an' he's no athlete at all—at all," came the reply. "He kapes the pawnshop."

SERIES WON BY TIGERS, DIVIDE IN DOUBLE BILL

League Leaders Remain Tied for Top Notch After Sunday's Games

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Vernon did what many thought impossible by grabbing off the series from San Francisco five to two yesterday at Washington park, when the Tigers divided a double bill with the northern tribe. The score of the first game was 5 to 1 and the Seals took the second by the same count.

The victories yesterday were gained much in the same manner. In the first Vernon was blessed with some good twirling on the part of Ken Penner, who pitched his second game of the series, and let the Seals down with six scattered bingles. In the afternoon battle, Bog Geary, who was given a warm welcome Thursday, turned in the best game of the week when he allowed but three hits and two of these came after the seventh inning, scoring the only run garnered by Essick's men.

The Red Sox made a triple play in the first inning but the Senators made five runs in the eighth and won, 9 to 6, Ehmke and Fuhr having nothing in particular. Lee and J. Harris collaborated in the triple demise, the latter catching Rice's drive, doubling Leibold at second and taking Lee's return in time to get S. Harris off first base.

Lyons, a recruit pitcher of the White Sox, forced in the winning run by passing Pratt with the bases filled in the ninth, the Tigers winning 4 to 3. Ty Cobb, a gentleman said to show considerable promise, got four hits and stole home in the fifth inning.

BUDDIES SUBDUE CASEYS IN EASE

Legion Boys Put Game on Ice In Third With Seven Runs Chalked Up

A fair gathering of the faithful who turned out to see the American Legion and Caseys open the day's hostilities at San Fernando road yesterday were treated to a rather mediocre exhibition of the national game. The Legion had little difficulty in beating the K. C.'s, 13 to 7.

After the Caseys had scored one in the first when Faulkner played R. Doll's hit badly, the Legion came back in the third and scored seven runs on a mixture of six hits, three errors and a lot of bonehead baseball. The blame could not go to any one individual. Gallagher was throwing them up there and then ducking. Practically every player in the field committed an error of execution or judgment, and the game was never in doubt from that time on.

Hodges, pitching for the Legion, until relieved by La Belle in the sixth, was the star of the game. In addition to holding the Caseys to two hits in five innings, he smacked out a home run, a single and a double in three times up. After giving way to La Belle he finished the game at first without a bobble.

Keep On Scoring

The Legion added two more in the fourth, one in the sixth and three in the seventh. The game was called then to make way for the Sox-All Star encounter. The Caseys scored one in the first, one in the second, three in the fifth and two in the seventh. They contributed six errors behind Faulkner and Cryan, who took the box in the fourth inning.

Next Sunday the Caseys play at the state convention in Pasadena and the Legion team expects to play the Inglewood Legion team here.

BEES 5-6, DUCKS 4-7

PORTLAND, April 28.—The Bees and the Beavers broke even in two close games of yesterday's double header. Portland lost the first game, 5 to 4, but won the second, 7 to 6.

Coumbe, pinch-hitting for Pittinger in the first game, clouted a homer with Lazzerre on, enough to beat the locals. His home run was one of five made during the game.

Cochrane won the second game with a Texas leaguer back of third base scoring High and Wolfer.

WHITE SOX WIN OPENING BATTLE

Colored All-Stars Defeated By Kerwin's Crew, 6-1, Five In Second

Last winter a large crowd turned out to see the White Sox, composed principally of Coast and Western leaguers, lose the first game of the season to Shell Oil.

Yesterday a fair crowd turned out to see the White Sox, composed fo busher youngsters, take a good game from Jasper Washington's Colored All-Stars, 6 to 1.

Thornton, U. S. C. hurler, turned in the best game for Carl Sawyer that has ever been witnessed on the White Sox lot. Two hits, one a homer by Wilson in the first inning, resulting in the visitors' only score, tells the extent of their damage to Thornton's delivery. The other was a single by Butcher in the fifth. He fanned two and walked one.

Jackson For All-Stars

Jackson, colored southpaw, really deserved a better fate. He pitched good ball. The blow-up came in the second when the Sox scored five runs after two were down, due to the errors in judgment by his support.

But thirty men faced Thornton during the afternoon. In the second, third, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings he ptiched to but three batters. After Wilson had connected with one of his curves for a homer in the first inning, not a man reached first until Butcher singled in the fifth. Butcher's hit came with two down. Thornton hit Foote, the next man up, but Jackson grounded out, Thornton to Sawyer. In the sixth, Anderson walked, but was doubled when Hood, the next man up, hit to Hirigoyen. Hirigoyen's error, the first White Sox miscue of the game, came in the ninth when he threw low to first on Harris' roller. Dyers flew out, Wilson struck out and Fagin grounded to Robins, so that ended the pastime.

Five in Second

The Sox put the game on ice in the second inning. After Harris had thrown Young out and Robins went out to Fagin unassisted, Ennis singled to center. Jackson walked Thornton and Hirigoyen in succession, filling the bases. Schultz lifted a high one to Wilson in center, which he failed to get and it went for a two-bagger, scoring Ennis, Thornton and Hirigoyen. Sawyer breezed one to left, where a long slim gentleman by the name of Hood was pastiming. He misjudged it and Schultz scored. Orsatt drove the third double of the inning to center, scoring Sawyer. Lorenson called a halt to the bombardment by grounding out to Fagin. Five runs had scored with two down.

The other Sox counter came in the eighth. Robins walked, stole second and scored on Ennis' single to center, his second of the afternoon.

The Sox found Jackson for eight hits, four of which came in the second inning. Dorman will be back in the lineup next Sunday and the Sox ought to have little trouble going through the summer league schedule in good shape.

OAKLAND-TIGERS SERIES IS NEXT

Ewing Brings Hard Hitting Lads From Bay City to Tackle Vernon

By R. C. FRANKLIN
For Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—J. Cal Ewing will send his tribe of Oakland ball players to Los Angeles today, where the Acorns open a seven-game series with the climbing Vernon Tigers.

Oakland ended their series with the Angels yesterday by grabbing off the morning mill and tucking the series safely away. The Tigers ended their winning streak in the afternoon when the falling Seals managed to put over a win and keep their heads above water by tying the Cats for the league leadership. Vernon took the series from the northern squad, five games to two.

The great Walter Mails, who has been shutting them out with regularity this season, will probably open the local series against the Tigers. Frank Shellenback, with as good a record as Mails, has been saved for the opening day for the Scouts.

The Angels travel across the bay for their series this week against the Seals. Should Krug's outfit get going again they will give the 1924 champs a mighty hard run before the week is over.

PLANS WELCOME TO TIGER STARS

Occidental Squad on Way Home After Successful Eastern Invasion

Coming back strong in the second day's events in the Penn relay carnival, Coach Pipal's warriors succeeded in winning the college relay championship of America in class B, and nosing Columbia out of all possible chances for first. Besides winning the four-man mile relay in 3m. flat, the old record, the Occidental four-man half mile team took a close second in the University of Pennsylvania and landed fourth in the international sprint medley relay.

Cliff Argue was kept out of the feature match race against Liddell in the century because his knee was injured. Argue won fourth in the furlong and Roy Goodenough took a fourth in the pole vault.

The little band of Tigers from the West surprised everybody when they defeated larger institutions such as Columbia, Boston, U. S. Naval academy, University of Chicago, and Syracuse.

Coach Pipal and his team are en route back home, bringing with them a large quantity of medals, cups, ribbons, watches, and other prizes. A great celebration will greet the boys when they get off the train in Los Angeles Thursday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR A BARGAIN?
READ THIS

This house is within one-half block of the Doran sreet school, on one of the best streets in the exclusive northeast section.

It was built less than two years ago by an eastern builder, for his home. The construction is the best, from foundation to roof. The floors are hardwood throughout, laid over solid tongue and groove flooring, instead of the usual way. Laundry is in the basement; there is a gas furnace, with pipes to every rooms.

Large living room, dining room, three large bedrooms, kitchen, breakfast nook, bath and screen porch, also unfinished attic, with stairway, which can be utilized for additional sleeping rooms, if desired. Large cement porch at front, porch at side, and rear, double garage.

Lot 50x145, east front. Several large fruit trees.

The owner of this property has business interests in the east which demand his return. He has made a price which insures an immediate sale. $8000, $2500 cash will handle.

Not a lot in this block can be bought for less than $3500. This property is easily $1500 underpriced.

YEGGS MAKE BIG HAUL IN JEWELRY

Safecrackers Cross Famous Dead Line; Get $150,000 Worth of Diamonds

NEW YORK, April 28.—Invading the "dead line" district into which crooks are forbidden to tread, three yeggs today made a haul of $150,000 worth of diamonds and settings from the jewelry establishment of Charles Kresney, near the financial district.

After overpowering the owner and binding him, the men opened three safes. A scrub woman who surprised them cracking the safe, was cowed with revolvers, bound and locked in a wash room. Kresney was roughly handled by the yeggs and had to be taken to a hospital.

Kresney opened his place earlier today to receive applicants for places as jewelers. The yeggs arr

The above description is general only. Plat No. 848-A of said district, duly adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale, indicating by a red boundary line the extent of the territory included in the proposed district, is on file in the office of the City Engineer. Reference is hereby made to said plat for a further, full and complete description of said assessment district. The said plat so on file shall govern for all details as to the extent of the said assessment district.

SECTION 3. That notice is hereby given, that on Thursday, the 15th day of May, 1924, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., in the Council Chamber of the Council of said City, located in the City Hall, 619 East Broadway, Glendale, California, any and all persons having any objections to the proposed work or improvement may appear before said Council and show cause why said proposed work or improvement should not be carried out in accordance with this Resolution of Intention.

SECTION 4. That the City Clerk is hereby directed to publish this Resolution of Intention in The Glendale Evening News, a daily newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City and hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution of Intention shall be published in the manner and in the form required by law.

SECTION 5. That the Street Superintendent of said City of Glendale shall cause to be conspicuously posted along the line of said contemplated work or improvement and along all of the open streets in the district to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said improvement, notices of the passage of this Resolution of Intention, in the time, in the form and in the manner required by law.

SECTION 6. That the City Council of the City of Glendale hereby determines and declares that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments, and to bear interest at the rate of seven per cent (7%) per annum, shall be issued hereunder in the manner provided by the "Improvement Bond Act of 1915," and the last installment of said bonds shall mature nine (9) years from the second day of July next succeeding ten (10) months from their date.

SECTION 7. That reference is hereby made to the Pacific Water Works Supply Company, a corporation, of Los Angeles, California. License Agreement dated the 10th day of March, 1924, and filed in the office of the City Clerk of said City of Glendale and open to public inspection.

SECTION 8. Except as hereinbefore stated, all the proceedings for the aforesaid work and improvement shall be had and taken under an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, known as the "Improvement Act of 1911."

Adopted and approved this 24th day of April, 1924.

S. S. GILHULY,
Mayor Pro Tem of the City of Glendale.

Attest: A. J. VAN WIE,
City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

Lonely, Would Swap Conversation Even With U. S. Marshal

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—A wire received at the sheriff's office early today requested that the United States marshal have a man meet John B. Goodrich at Tecopa, Calif., in Inyo county at 9 o'clock this morning. Marshal Al Sittel was puzzled, but Southland News Service learned that Goodrich simply wanted someone to talk to, having been out on the desert too long, evidently.

INAUGURAL BALL GIVEN BY ELKS IS BIG SUCCESS

Annual Event at Club House Is Brilliant Affair; Officers Honored

The Glendale Elks held their annual inaugural ball last Saturday night at their clubhouse with more than a hundred and fifty couples in attendance.

The ballroom had been transferred into a spring garden with artistic arrangements of potted plants, palms and flowers. The lights had been delicately tinted which cast a soft glow over the ensemble of dancers.

The annual event is always one of brilliance and the committee in charge this year to be complimented upon the success of the affair.

Officers Honored

Music for the dancing was furnished by a well-known orchestra playing under the incognito of the Elks' Symphony orchestra. The grand march was led by Earl S. Patterson, exalted ruler, and Mrs. Walter Jones.

Other officers honored with their wives were Gerald A. Dockeray, esteemed leading knight; J. Murray Durham, esteemed loyal knight; Jesse W. Headlee, esteemed lecturing knight; Dr. Paul J. Holmes, tyler; Walter W. Jones, secretary; Herman Nelson, treasurer; Daniel Kelty, trustee; James A. Apffel, delegate to grand lodge; Peter L. Ferry, alternate delegate to grand lodge, and as appointive officers, James B. McBryde, chaplain; Gus H. Pulliam, esquire; Earl A. Garren, inner guard, and David E. Langlands, organist.

During the evening several novelty dance numbers were introduced. Among those worthy of mention were the ballet dances given by Miss Vera Lyman and the Spanish dances given by the Gaby trio, a family of well known Spanish dancers.

At a late hour refreshments were served and dancing continued until midnight.

EDITOR IN PLEA FOR FREE SPEECH

Carl Magee, Nemesis of Fall, Speaker at Pasadena Gridiron Banquet

By GIL A. COWAN
For Southland News Service.

Carl Magee, Albuquerque, N. M., editor, who is credited with having tipped the Teapot by giving the first prophetic information that all was not well in Washington, spoke before the Pasadena Press club at its Gridiron banquet Saturday night.

While he told his fellow newspaper men about unearthing of evidence which brought former Secretary Albert B. Fall into disrepute and opened wide the hidden channels of corruption at the capital, there was something more in his speech.

Freedom of Press

It was the appeal for the freedom of the newspapers to challenge public servants, to criticise their acts when criticism is justified and to throw "the pure stream of publicity into the sewer of corruption."

In New Mexico Mr. Magee found that it was impossible for him to broach matters of public information without being taken over to Las Vegas, away from his home city, and there tried and convicted for criminal libel before a jury which could not read the English language!

As a result of it all, however, the governor of New Mexico pardoned the editor, due to the pressure of public opinion. That does not relieve the stigma of arrest and conviction. Nor does that correct the conditions ir Las Vegas, N. M., where the superior court judge evidently uses public office for the miscarriage of justice.

Justice Perverted

The point driven home by Mr. Magee was that under the laws of this land it is possible to pervert justice to the extent of secreting crimes by public officials or those who hold power either through influence or wealth. No judge or jury should ever permit such conditions to arise, but the fact that they have is signal for an awakening of public consciousness.

We should be more careful in the selection of of public officials. There is no reason why voters should accept the names of candidates selected by small cliques gathered in so-called caucuses as the fit and proper nominees for office. It is right there where sinister influences first find their way into the government.

Primary Law Fails

Our primary law in California and other election reforms are designed to make it possible for any man to get a fair and equal chance in the political whirl. That, however, is not a fact. The private interests in all parties, the sinister influences, if you please, see to it that anyone who cannot be "controlled" cannot get anywhere.

Mr. Magee is right when he implores the public to awaken to the desirability of having public servants, not paid representatives of the interests, elected to office. May his tribe increase.

The total appropriations by Congress for the use of the United States Veterans' Bureau and its affiliations aggregate $2,203,554,269.55.

Fighting Bellhop To Be In Feature Battle at Vernon

Young Nationalista, sensational Filipino bantamweight, who has not lost a decision in Los Angeles, fights the main event at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena against Teddy Silva tomorrow night, and all bellhops will be out in force. Silva is a tough baby, and is trained to the minute for his go with the swarthy scrapper.

In the semi-windup, "Larry" Murphy, the "knock-'em-dead" 128-pounder, will go against Bert Lamar. Other bouts will be: Happy Harry Howard and Kid Mexico, 158; Benny Diaz and Piedro Villa, 112; Lefty Cooper and Young Terry, 145; Toby Montoya and Jack Sherman, 125; Roy Moore and Herb Ryan, 145.

GET FIVE MEDALS FOR TWO EVENTS

High School Track Artists Fail to Place High In Conference Meet

By ROSS M. RUSSELL, JR.
Of The Evening News Staff.

Although Coach Hayhurst's class C cinderpath team came home with four gold medals and one silver it only finished in fourth place in total points at the Southern California track meet Saturday at the Los Angeles Coliseum. The fact that the Glendale track artists won the 440-yard, 4-man relay, each man receiving a gold medal, explains the local's receiving such an array of precious ornaments.

The Glendale relay team, composed of Miller, Lowe, Dinsmore and Korb, put up a wonderful race, bettering the former record of 49.8 by two full seconds. Shirley Miller, the only single Glendale athlete to place, took second in the broad jump. In all the other lightweight events the local boys failed to place.

The Manual Arts 110-pound athletes won the class C meet with a total of 14½ points; Lincoln and Harvard tied for second with 11 points; Inglewood was third, 9 points; Glendale and San Luis Obispo tied for fourth, 8 points.

In the class A section the Dynamiters were eliminated without a lookin. Harry Fish, who was expected to show some class in the 440, took a measly sixth place.

Officers of Epworth League Are Installed

The newly elected officers of the Epworth League of the First Methodist church were installed by the assistant pastor, Rev. Harry I. Rasmus, at the Sunday evening service. Officers installed were:

President, Deane F. Swindell; first vice president, Orville Hallam; second vice president, Charles Rich; third vice president, Florence Hamilton; fourth vice president, Walter Whitney; secretary, Helen Wood; treasurer, Frank Chapman; chorister, E. Chase Ullom; pianist, Gladys Flagg.

Senior League—President, Erma Lucas; first vice president, Leone Percy; second vice president, Elsie Whitney; third vice president, Margaret Knight; fourth vice president, Doris Davis; secretary, Gladys Jones; treasurer, William Hallam; chorister; Glenn Logan; pianist, Winifred Fessenden; superintendent, Edwin Murphy.

Preceding the installation short addresses were made by Miss Erma Lucas, Miss Margaret Clarke, G. Edwin Murphy, Elwood Ingledue, and Dean Swindell. From the standpoint of activity and results obtained, the Epworth of the First M. E. church leads the entire district.

Two Murderers Die In Chair for Crimes

BELLEFONTE, Pa., April 28.—Albert Platt, convicted from Crawford county for the murder of an 18-year-old boy, and Wylie (Texas) Morgan, convicted from Philadelphia county for killing a 6-year-old girl, were electrocuted at Rockview penitentiary here this morning.

Knights Templar To Be Guests at Long Beach Ball

Glendale commandery, No. 53, Knights Templar, goes to Long Beach tonight to a reception and ball in honor of Right Eminent Sir Charles Malcolm, grand commander of the state of California.

The local drill team and other Knights from Glendale will assemble at the Masonic temple, 232 South Brand boulevard, at 6 o'clock, announces Commander Robert M. Grumbling of Glendale commandery. They will leave for Long Beach on a special Pacific Electric car, returning the same way. An auto caravan was made impractical by reason of the quarantine.

All Sir Knights and Ladies who contemplate making the pilgrimage are requested by Commander Grumbling to be on hand at the appointed hour.

LIFE OF CHRIST BASIS OF SERMON

'The True Vine' Forms Topic Of Rev. J. C. Livingston Of Casa Verdugo

"The True Vine" was the subject of the sermon by the Rev. J. C. Livingston, pastor of Casa Verdugo Methodist church, at the Sunday morning service. "I am the vine, ye are the branches, my Father is the husbandman" were the words chosen for the text. The sermon was based on the life of Christ as felt through all the ages.

"The story of the creation may be reduced to four pages of the Bible and yet the history of centuries is built on these four pages" said the speaker, "the story of the Son of man is told in few pages but the sound of that reiteration has reached out and touched every phase of thought that challenges our attention.

Church's Foundation

"Around letters written by the apostles is reared the foundation of the Christian church. Israel was the vine of which God sang through the language of the prophets.

"The stream is lost in the bay, and the bay in the ocean, but there is no power given by which one may discern the end of one or the beginning of the other."

Special music numbers were a baritone solo "God, My Father" (DuBois) by Myron Carman, with accompaniment by Mrs. Carman; anthem, "The Radiant Morn," by the choir.

The subject of the sermon by the pastor at the evening service was "Hid from the wise—Revealed unto babes."

Special numbers by the boys' vested choir were an anthem, "The Good Shepherd" (Barri), with solo parts by Robert Keller; solo "Blessed Is He" (Gounod) by John Koenig of the boys' choir.

PREDICTS DEFEAT OF MELLON RATES

Warn Coolidge Compromise On Income Schedules Must Be Accepted

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Coolidge has been advised by Republican leaders in the Senate that the Mellon income tax rates are doomed to defeat and that he will have to accept a compromise if he signs the new tax reduction bill, it was learned today.

Already rejected by the House, the Mellon schedules—with a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent—will come to a vote in the Senate this week with enough votes lined up against them to eliminate them definitely from the bill.

be based on the rates adopted by

The compromise is expected to the House—a maximum surtax of 37½ per cent and normal rates of two per cent on incomes below $4,000; five per cent between $4,000 and $8,000, and six per cent from $8,000 up. These are the so-called Longworth rates.

Former Mrs. Caruso Admits Break With Her British Hubby

NEW YORK, April 28.—Mrs. E. A. Ingram, wife of the late Enrico Caruso, through her lawyer, today confirmed reports that she had separated from her husband, a captain in the British army, whom she married less than five months ago.

Her attorney, Alfred E. Seligsberg, said:

"The reports are correct. However, no divorce action is pending or contemplated."

LAUNCHES FIGHT ON JAP CABINET

Veiled Threat to America by Hanihara Is Issue In Political Battle

TOKIO, April 28.—The phrase "grave consequences" threatens to become the central issue in a domestic Japanese political battle. It was indicated today that the anti-government forces will use the Hanihara note in an attempt to unseat the Kiyoura government.

Yukio Ozaki, a favorite of the people among the anti-government politicians, issued a broadside against the foreign office for what he declared was their blunder in diplomatic language. The Japanese brought on this unfortunate situation, declared his proclamation.

"It appears that the government instructed Hanihara to use language that a good diplomat should know is improper. Therefore the entire misunderstanding is blamable upon the foreign office and the Kiyoura ministry. This the people of Japan must understand."

Marx Tells Germany To Meet All Demands

DUSSELDORF, April 28.—Chancellor Marx of Germany, speaking almost within the shadow of the headquarters of the French army of occupation declared today that Germany must meet the demands of the allies.

"Germany can regain her freedom only through a policy of fulfillment," he said.

"The Munich farce was disastrous for Germany. The nearer one gets to occupied territory the more reasonable the people are found to be. A few French battalions might cool the Bavarian temper. Maybe I will be beaten up for saying that when I return to Berlin, but it is true."

NEW YORK CLOSING

By International News Service

NEW YORK, April 28.—The stock market closed heavy today. Prices steadied somewhat in the final dealings but trading was extremely dull. Cast iron pipe rallied nearly 5 points from the low of the day. Railroads were practically immune from pressure. B. & O. lost a point to 52½, while Norfolk rose over a point to 122⅝. Oils showed pronounced heaviness, Cosden yielding 1½ to 32⅛, Houston 1⅜ to 69¼ and Pacific Oil 2½ points to 48¼. Steels continued weak, U. S. Steel losing nearly 2 pjoints to 99⅛ and Gulf States Steel 3 points to 67½. Equipments, motors, sugars, shippings and industrials also were heavily sold, losses in most of these issues ranging from 1 to over 2 points.

Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady. Stock sales today 652,700 shares; bonds $11,372,000.

PLAN TO INSTALL BARACA OFFICERS

Class to Hold Ceremony In Methodist Church on Night of May 11

Newly elected officers of the Baraca class of the First Methodist church are to be installed Sunday night, May 11, at the church by Rev. Harry Rasmus, Jr.

The officers, who were elected at the class meeting last week, are Gould H. Warren, president; Everett Sunderland, vice-president; Mr. Dundas, secretary; W. Ralph Wilsie, treasurer.

This will be the second term of service for Mr. Warren, during whose regime the class has increased from an enrollment of twenty and average attendance of twelve, to an enrollment of more than forty with an attendance of between thirty and thirty-five.

Organized Smilers

Under his administration the chapter of the Mystic Smile was organized and regular weekly meetings are held in club rooms in the Filger buliding on East Broadway.

In addition to this work Mr. Warren has been active in the recent organization of the young people's department of the Sunday school, comprising the Philathea and Baraca classes.

He is also executive secretary of the brotherhood of the church.

Glendale High Tennis Squad Beats Pasadena

When the Glendale High school net team and Pasadena court stars met at the Crown city, the local squad swamped the Millionaire tennis quartet 14—3. The only Glendale man to lose his match was Bob Laird, Glendale captain and first man, who was playing in poor form. He lost a tough match to Robbinson of Pasadena, 6—4, 4—6, 5—7.

Wayne Maxwell walked over Wallet, 6—2, 6—1; White subdued Ramsauer, 6—3, 6—3, and Hardey easily eliminated Weisbuck, 6—2, 6—2. In the first doubles Maxwell and Laird defeated Robbinson and Ramsauer, 6—2, 6—1. Hardey and White beat Wallet and Weisbuck, 6—2, 6—1.

This victory adds another scalp to the Glendale collection and leaves no doubt as to Glendale's possibility of carrying away the Central league banner. Maxwell and Laird are expected to show some class in the Southern California and state championships.

Oxy Ball Team Lose To Southern Branch

Occidental college's baseball team dropped a 10 to 4 game to Southern Branch on the Grizzly diamond last Saturday. This makes the third straight victory for the Grizzlies and the Tigers' second defeat.

Occidental scored first in the opening inning. The Branch came back for two runs in the second, another in the third, four in the fifth and a couple more later in the game. Oxy staged a mean comeback and totaled three markers in the seventh but too late to win the contest.

Brock pitched a good game for the victors. Squint Fulton was hurling wild and much off his regular form.

lines of endeavor are noted in the list of lecturers. Edward Amherst Ott—whose famous lecture, "Sour Grapes," has placed him at the very pinnacle of lecture fame in America; Cora Wilson Stewart, brilliant Kentucky woman who founded the schools for the emancipation of illiterate adults, and who tells the remarkable story of "Moonlight Schools"; Nipo Strongheart, who gives an entertaining lecture on the legends and customs of the swiftly vanishing Indian race. (Mr. Strongheart is a member of the Yakima tribe and has some up-to-the-minute information on the vexing Indian problem.) Sam Grathwell, Lyceum's "peptomist," presenting his popular lecture, "Getting By Your Hoodoo"; and Arthur Walwyn Evans, brilliant Welsh orator, member of the famous Lloyd George family, gives an instructive and constructive address, "The Lords of the Land."

Deprecates Use of Association's Slogan

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—The use of the slogan of the Greater Los Angeles Association by any private interests or by organizations not properly in sympathy with the wide scope and public spirit of the association, was severely criticized by H. H. Merrick, president of the Greater Los Angeles body. He said the movement was purely a business one and that it could not and would not share in controversial matters. The slogan in question is: "Keep the White pot White."

Sarazen and Havers May Meet In Britain

NEW YORK, April 28.—Following the defeat of Gene Sarazen, America's leading professional golfer, by Arthur Havers, British open champion, it was announced today that the pair may be re-matched to meet in England at or near the time of the British championship in June. Havers defeated Sarazen 5 up and 4 to play, after the American had been 3 up at the end of the 36 holes.

In a previous match in California, Sarazen won easily.

Postpone Meeting of Brand Association

The meeting of the Brand Boulevard Development association, scheduled for Saturday night, was postponed until a later date.

Many of the members were unable to be present and as several important reports were to be made, it was decided, according to Charles B. Guthrie, to wait until more of the business men could attend.

Charles Dana Gibson was born in Roxbury, Massachusetts.

FIRM HAS NOVEL WINDOW DISPLAY

Triangle Realty Co. Boosts Glendale In Striking Picture of City

One enthusiastic Glendalian's vision of this city next year is portrayed in the window of the Triangle Realty company, 400½ South Brand boulevard. The idea is the thought and execution of Mrs. Ella Larson, proprietor.

In the center of the window is Glendale's business section, the towering height of the new Security Trust and Savings Bank building a conspicuous figure. Nestling in the foothills representing the Verdugo hills is a typical bungalow, very well executed.

Leading to Glendale are highways with cars pointed in this direction and a miniature train is steaming toward "The Fastest Growing City in America." The window is very well done and is attracting considerable attention. In the center is the lighted triangle, emblem of the realty office.

Mrs. Larson, who stated this morning that business was very satisfactory, is planning an extensive advertising campaign, having closed last week a deal with a New York firm for an exclusive newspaper feature service.

Thirty-six Passports Issued in Single Day

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—A record was made here lately when the clerk of the United States District Court issued thirty-six passports in one day. Of the many places the travelers will go, England stands first, according to L. J. Cordes, the clerk of the court, and fewest will go to South America.

Order Father-in-Law To Pay Heavy Damage

CHICAGO, April 28.—Objectionable to her father-in-law, because she was not German, Mrs. Gladys Graham Fox has sued him for alienation of her husband's affection and has been awarded $50,000 damages. Albert Fox, the father-in-law, denied the charge through three trials, but lost.

Claims Husband Had Aversion to Labor

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Neva Belle Steen supported herself and husband at San Pedro by taking in washing, raising poultry and rabbits, she says in a divorce action filed against John O. Steen. He became angry, knocked her down, sold the poultry, burned the poultry houses and rabbit hutches and tried to burn the home, she alleges. Then he got the playful habit of punching her in the body whenever he passed her, she complains.

CITIES ENGAGE IN LEGAL BATTLE

Virginia City Residents to Seek Annulment of Long Beach Annexation

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—A legal battle involving the future of Virginia City and surrounding territory annexed to the city of Long Beach at an election last December, will be fought before Judge C. W. Guerin in superior court tomorrow. Arrayed on one side are property owners of the Virginia City district who are demanding a writ of certiorari to annul the annexation proceedings. On the other hand are the officials of Long Beach, headed by Mayor Charles A. Buffman.

The protestants, led by A. C. Brown, Joseph F. Wagner, Charles Harper and others, have already met one defeat. Following the annexation, they appealed to Attorney General U. S. Webb for the right to sue for annulment. Petitions signed by 1000 Virginia City residents were offered in reply by Long Beach. The attorney general denied Brown's plea.

Fire Stations' Established

It is claimed by the protestants that the annexed territory is not a single body of land lying contiguous to the City. Mayor Buffam claims it should all be included in Greater Long Beach. He says that since the attorney general's decision, Long Beach has spent $100,000 in the new addition; has provided fire and police protection, has purchased three sites for fire houses, has arranged for water and sewerage. Virginia City has a population of more than 8,000.

Seize Payroll, Flee In Hail of Bullets

GRANITE CITY, Ill., April 26.—Five bandits swooped down on the Granite City National bank today as T. D. Gradinaros, bank messenger, was entering with the payroll of the Granite City Rolling mills, snatched the messenger's bag containing $63,000, and escaped in an automobile under a hail of bullets from bank officials.

The first shot from the gun of the bank's cashier tumbled one of the bandits from the machine. His companions dragged him back in, as they riddled the front of the bank with bullets.

GLENDALIANS ON MUSIC PROGRAM

Two Local Artists Appear At Convention Held In Berkeley Today

Glendale is being represented at the convention of the California Federated Music clubs now convening in Berkeley by two talented members of the Glendale Music club, Miss Gertrude Cleophas, well known artist-pianist, of 337 North Central avenue, representing the adult department of the club, and Alonzo Wolter, accomplished young pianist of 312 North Orange street, representing the junior auxiliary of the club.

Miss Cleophas is recognized as one of California's most talented pianists and Glendale is proud to claim her as a resident.

Alonzo Wolter, who is a student at the Glendale Union high school, is a young musician with promise of a brilliant future. He has been entirely trained by his sister, Miss Clara Wolter, pianist and instructor. He appeared on the convention program this afternoon, playing "Scherzo in C Sharp Minor" (Chopin) and two compositions of his own, "The Mill" and "Impressions in a Clock Shop."

Another Fish Story Is Run into Ground

SACRAMENTO, April 26.—Charges that gunfire practice by United States naval vessels on the California coast frighten fish away and inflict heavy commercial losses are baseless, according to Will F. Thompson, investigator for the State Fish and Game commission.

"The story is in a class with the supposed effect of whales on the migration of herrings," said Thompson. "After repeated firing by heavy guns no leaping by frightened fish could be observed, nor were any found floating dead from shock, as is the case when dynamite is exploded under water. My conclusion is that this is merely another 'fish story.'"

Cruiser Despatched To Port in Mexico

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Alarmed by inability to communicate with Robert L. Rankin, American consul at Frontiera, Mexico, the state department late yesterday had the United States cruiser Tulsa despatched to that port. The department has received information that bandit bands have cut all land wires between Frontiera and other points in Mexico and fear is expressed for the safety of Rankin.

Divorce Complaints Thrown Out of Court

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—William A. Saueressig, Long Beach, sued for divorce on the ground that his wife spent all her time as a "lady barber' and neglected her household duties. Ethel Saueressig, in a cross-complaint, accused her husband of stinginess. Judge Ira Thompson threw both complaints out of court and warned the principals "to settle down and take care of the children."

CALVIN WHITING IN GLENDALE NOW

Injured Man Removed From Bakersfield to Local Hospital, Improved

The many friends of Calvin Whiting of 512 North Kenwood street, who has been suffering from a serious injury, will be glad to learn he was brought to Glendale last Wednesday night from Bakersfield and taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. Mrs. Whiting stated this morning both she and Mr. Whiting were very grateful and appreciative of the interest taken by their many friensd here.

Mr. Whiting has shown a marked improvement and it is hoped he will soon be able to receive visitors.

ANAHEIM MEN TO KNOW FATE

Trial of Former Prominent Officials on Robbery Charge Nears End

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—The trial of Joseph R. Abernathy, former superintendent of schools at Anaheim, and Charles R. Wheeler, formerly in charge of the registry division of the postoffice in that city, who are charged with robbing a registered mail pouch at Anaheim, will be completed tomorrow, according to attorneys in the case.

Eleven character witnesses were produced in federal court here by the accused men and the case was continued until Tuesday. Abernathy and Wheeler are accused of having planned the robbery with J. Lloyd Finley, driver of the mail truck from which the valuable pouch was alleged to have been taken. Finley pleaded guilty.

All sleeping car berths on trains running out of London are reserved a month in advance of departure.
